MESSAGE HELD FOR 24 HOURS

WASHINGTON, May 26.—An affront to the United States, by Provisional President of Mexico, Huerta, bordering close to a direct insult, followed close on the heels of a frantic appeal by the Mexican government, that President Wilson delay the reading of his message to Congress for twenty-four hours.

The appeal came through the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Gamboa, and was indorsed by John Lind, President Wilson's special envoy. It was immediately granted and announcement made that President Wilson would not read the message to Congress until tomorrow.

Hardly had this announcement been made when administration circles were startled by the information that Envoy Lind's departure from Mexico City, on his homeward journey had not only been marked by studied neglect on the part of Mexican officials, but Huerta's offer of his private car for the use of the envoy and his wife, accepted by the former, had failed of fulfillment.

The private car was not at the station when the Linds took their departure and they were obliged to use an ordinary day coach on the journey to Vera Cruz.

Charge d'Affaires Nelson O'Shaughnessy of the United States Embassy was at the station to bid Mr. and Mrs. Lind good-bye, but there were no representatives of the Mexican government on hand. This was regarded as significant, but not nearly so much so as was the absence of the presidential private car after it had been offered for the use of the special envoy and his wife. Americans looked upon this as a direct affront.

News that President Wilson had postponed until Wednesday the delivery of his message on Mexican affairs to Congress, was received in Mexico City with satisfaction by officials of the United States Embassy.

It had been expected that any utterance from President Wilson construed here as hostile to Mexico might give rise here to an anti-American demonstration. Belief was expressed that President Huerta asked for a postponement of the delivery of the Wilson message until Mr. and Mrs. Lind are safe on board a U. S. warship at Vera Cruz, and that there would be no possible attempt at assassination.

Bishop Broderick Is Awarded $18,901

Case with Which Ex-Congressman Sullivan Was Associated.

HARTFORD, Ct., Aug. 26.—In a decision handed down by Judge Marcus H. Holcomb today Bishop Bonaventure Broderick of Saugerties, N. Y., formerly of Hartford, who has been assailing Governor Sulzer and is being accused himself in turn, is awarded $18,901.40 and commissions and interest from his brother, David Broderick of Farmington, Ct., and Hugh J. Reilley, Jr., of New York city.

Associated with Bishop Broderick in the suit, which has been on trial here for several months, is former Congressman John A. Sullivan of Boston, and the complaint alleged failure by David Broderick and Reilley to pay to the plaintiff partners their share of a $571,000 contract made by the republic of Cuba for sewers and waters works in Cienfuegos.

Judge Holcomb further orders the defendants to disgorge a number of gratuities which they paid, including one of $100 to the engineer of their train.

Calumet Strikers May Stop All Work

Troops Out to Prevent Trouble at Two Parades.

CALUMET, Mich., Aug. 26.—Every soldier in the Calumet district was ordered on duty early today following an announcement from the office of the sheriff that a general demonstration would be started by the striking miners in an effort to stop all work in the copper mines.

Information has been received by the sheriff that two parades would start from both sides of the town. It was said the strikers would be accompanied by their women and children. Strikers declared that the presence of their families was evidence of their peaceable intentions.

All deputies have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness, however. The sheriff announced that drastic steps would be taken to suppress disorder.

Throat Paralyzed; Boy Fed by Wire

PITTSFIELD, Aug. 26.—Jesse Sherman, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sherman of Great Barrington, has a rare case of infantile paralysis, which is being treated here at the House of Mercy. The disease has affected the muscles of the boy's throat instead of the spine or limbs as is usually the case.

The little fellow cannot swallow and is being fed by means of a tube which runs down his neck and through which liquid nourishment is given. The case has attracted the attention of Dr. Thomas Southworth, the eminent specialist, who will have the boy removed to New York for further observation.

Mill Worker Stabs Himself in Breast

LOWELL, Aug. 26.—Charles Lavas, aged twenty-five, a mill operative, stabbed himself in the left breast in the yard of the Merrimac Manufacturing Company this morning. He was rushed to the Lowell Hospital. The report there is that the wound is not serious.

Lavas, who is a native of Greece, was talking with Stavros Lavaropoulos, another operative, when he startled all present by shrieking in Greek he was tired of life and then stabbing himself with a sharp-pointed knife.

Famous English Song Writer Dead

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Michael Maybrick, the famous composer, better known under his nom de plume Stephen Adams, died at his home on the Isle of Wight, aged sixty-nine. Among the songs written by Maybrick are "Nancy Lee," "Midshipmite," "The Holy City," "Long Live the King," and a "Warrior Bold."

FOUR FIRM FRIENDS OF HARRY THAW

These children of Governor La Force have the run of the jail. They appear at some some time every day in front of Thaw's cell to peer through the bars and laugh and chatter with the prisoner. Thaw looks forward to their visit, and to the flowers or the cakes that they sometimes bring. Left to right, Geraldine, Gertrude, Gervais and Juliet.

MAY DEMAND 'L' BOOKS AT ARBITRATION

Attorney John P. Feeney, in cross-examination of witnesses today at the Elevated arbitration hearings, indicated that he may, in the course of the investigation, demand that the books of the road be brought before the board for inquiries into the earnings and profits of the concern.

He said:

"I intend to bring to light all facts that have any bearing upon the question before this board for consideration."

George H. Tripp, superintendent of the surface lines, and Chief Instructor Ching were witnesses today and were questioned as to the alleged responsibilities and duties of motormen and conductors during the past few years.

A hot clash between Attorney John P. Feeney and Attorney Richard P. Walsh, representing the city of Boston, opened the hearing.

Walsh, representing the city, asked permission to be present officially at the hearings and to make statements at any time on behalf of the city.

Attorney Feeney objected:

"No one outside of the two parties directly concerned with this case should be allowed to be present.

"Once you permit outside parties to come in, you break down the fundamental and basic principle of arbitration. If Boston is to be represented—other cities and towns through which the Elevated runs, have a right to have attorneys here, and the result would be endless do ay."

Attorney Walsh came at the request of Mayor Fitzgerald. The arbiters after consideration said they would decide on Mr. Walsh's request tomorrow morning.

Walpole Man Wed in Borrowed Auto

Lost His Own Car, but Got Another to Reach Church.

Kurt Wendell, a wealthy paper manufacturer of Walpole, is the principal figure in the most daring elopement New York has seen in years. He lost his automobile, but that did not prevent him from stopping the first one he met and putting in it his promised bride, Miss Eloise Rose of Denver. They began a hurried flight to get married. It was 2:28 in the morning when he stood in the road near Garden City, Long Island, and halted the first automobile that came along.

"I can't find my machine. I can't find the garage. I must get married. Help us out," he pleaded. "Lend me your auto."

"You're on," said the unknown aid to Cupid. They arrived in New York at 4 a. m., rode around town in tatters and bought a ring, then when the Little Church Around the Corner opened the pair ran right in and got married.

Urge Charlestown Man for Postal Job

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—John Y. Noonan of Charlestown has been strongly urged upon Postmaster-General Burleson for advancement to the position of assistant superintendent of the Railway Mail Service. Noonan has been in the department since 1885. He is recommended for promotion by members of the Democratic State Committee and Massachusetts Congressmen.

SIAS ESTATE'S TOTAL VALUE IS $2,331,364

The inventory of the estate of the late Charles B. Sias of Boston and Wenham was filed today at Salem.

The inventory showed the total value of the estate to be $2,331,363.99.

The personal property included in the above figures was $2,313,863.99.

Mr. Sias was well known as a leading coffee merchant prior to his death.

Molten Metal Runs Down Over 20 Men

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 26.—Twenty men were seriously burned, five of them will die, when a "ladle" car carrying over five tons of molten metal toppled over in the steel mill of the Republic Sheet & Tube Co., here today. The metal poured over the men and coming into contact with water on the floor of the plant resulted in explosions which added to the panic.

Shoplifter Aided by Step-Daughter

Using her thirteen-year-old step-daughter as an accomplice to steal from department stores, Mrs. Rose Silva, thirty, of No. 44 Havre street, East Boston, was found guilty and fined $20 by Chief Justice Bolster in the Municipal Court today. Her step-daughter, Helen, also charged with the same offence, had her case disposed of in the Juvenile Court.

Mrs. Silva's husband paid the fine.

Professional 'Pugs' Make a Big Mistake

Got Badly Walloped When They Held Up Two Young Men.

Two professional boxers made a serious mistake last night when they attempted to intimidate two young men who came out of Young's Hotel with their wives. The men who have delighted patrons of the ring demanded money from the two young men. When refused they attempted to use force and then it was that they blundered. They soon found themselves on the sidewalk. It will be several days before their friends will recognize them.

Joseph Daily, twenty-eight, of Chelsea, and Jack Burt, twenty-eight, of Medford, were the losers and they were taken to the Court Square Station and locked up on the charge of drunkenness.

FUGITIVE MUST BE DEPORTED

No Appeal Nor Delay, According to Statement of Dominion Office at Ottawa.

INTENT OF LAW IS CLEAR

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 26.—According to a positive statement by the Dominion Office here today, Harry Thaw must leave Canada.

There is no discretion in the hands of any officer or court. Under Section 40 of the immigration act, Thaw is not eligible to enter Canada. The classes listed as not eligible, even if they succeed in entering Canada, are not permitted to remain.

The act prescribes that idiots, imbeciles, insane people or erstwhile criminals shall not enter the country, and if they do by eluding the officers of the department or by misrepresentation or stealth they shall be deported, forthwith.

It is not a question of departmental policy or one involving the exercise of discretionary powers, but simply the automatic operation of the law.

Single Exception.

There is one exception. If a person or immigrant, though belonging to the prohibited class, enters Canada, carrying with him through transportation to another country, it is beyond the ministerial competency of the department to impede his progress.

This was exemplified in the case of Jack Johnson, whereby an appeal by Secretary of State Bryan to detain the pugilist and hand him over to the United States authorities could not legally be complied with.

Thaw has no such ticket.

THAW MAKES SAVAGE ATTACK ON JEROME FROM JAIL WARD

SHERBROOKE, P. Q., Aug. 26.—"Thaw will be dumped over the border and seized in Vermont or New Hampshire without delay," was the prediction of William Travers Jerome today.

Mr. Jerome's prophecy was in reply to the prediction of ex-Governor William A. Stone of Pennsylvania, of Thaw's counsel, that "Thaw will be in Canada when the snow flies. He's sent for his fur overcoat."

"Ex-Governor Stone is a mighty poor weather prophet," said Jerome. "I never heard of it snowing in August. Thaw will be deported at once, and extradition into New York will be speedy."

While Jerome and Ex-Governor Stone were exchanging compliments, Thaw came forth with a vicious attack upon the former New York prosecutor. He charged

THAW A LUNATIC AND IS GOING BACK, SAYS JEROME

TIRELESS PROSECUTOR OF WHITE'S SLAYER DECLARES DEPORTATION INEVITABLE

SHERBROOKE, P. Q., Aug. 26.—William Travers Jerome today told frankly just how he expects to get Harry Thaw back to Matteawan. He said:

"Thaw's deportation from Canada is certain. This is admitted even by his own counsel. Once across the border the question seems to me entirely up to the Governor of Vermont or New Hampshire. Thaw will be deported to one of these States.

"We shall simply establish Thaw's identity, state that a crime has been committed and demand extradition. The other side will claim that no crime has been committed, and then both sides will submit briefs to the Governor, who will decide.

"Thaw is a dangerous person to be at large, and no Governor and no court would assume the grave responsibility of setting him at liberty. Thaw can take advantage of every legal technicality, but he can at best but defer the inevitable for a short time.

Lunatic and a Fugitive.

"The only way to look at this question is in its broad and general aspects. Harry Thaw is a lunatic and he is a fugitive from an institution for the criminal insane. Do you suppose the Governor of any State in the Union would refuse to honor the requisition of the Governor of New York for Harry Thaw?

"The fact is, I had no desire to get into this case, for I thought I was through with Thaw. I was on a vacation and was trying some highway cases at New York city. I received a message from Attorney-General Carmody, asking me to take charge of the extradition proceedings and go to Canada to represent him.

"I did not care for the last, but accepted the appointment of special assistant. At Williamstown I met Captain John Lanyon, a New York private detective who had done work for me when I was district attorney, and asked him to come along. We left Williamstown Sunday morning and drove through Bennington, Wallingford, Woodstock, to White River Junction, Vt., and then on to Lancaster, N. H., by way of Hanover and Littleton.

"I wanted to get some idea of the places we might have to go with Thaw so took a road to Coaticook, the road over which Thaw entered Canada. I got acquainted with the Canadian immigration officers and the local officers there and then came on to Sherbrooke.

"I do not expect that there is anything for me to do here, as I am told that there is no question that Thaw will be deported. I will follow him into Vermont and my work will begin, then."

Jerome Sure of Ground.

It is immaterial to Special New York Attorney Jerome, whether Thaw is deported into Vermont, New Hampshire or Maine.

Mr. Jerome said:

"I have driven through both States and I have talked with the Federal and the State officers on the border and they will co-operate with the New York authorities as soon as Harry Thaw enters the jurisdiction of the United States or the State Courts.

"I have heard the reports that some strong arm men or other agents of Thaw will attempt to rescue him from the Vermont officers when he is arrested after leaving Canada.

"That is absurd. No one will attempt to interfere with the arrest of Thaw in Vermont. In the first place no one connected with him has the nerve to try such a bold trick and it would not be successful if tried. It the second place, Thaw thinks he is sane and he is possessed of the delusion that if he can have a hearing in some State other than New York, he will be declared sane and free.

"Any sensible man knows that Thaw must make his fight against extradition in the United States, whether he does it this week, next month or next year. He will not be harbored in any foreign country which he could reach from Canada, even by sea. He must make his defence in the United States."

Will Charge Conspiracy.

An indictment for conspiracy would be the basis of a requisition by the Governor of New York for Thaw's extradition.

Mr. Jerome was asked whether as a sane person could be guilty of conspiracy, and if a charge of conspiracy was not a practical admission of insanity.

"No," he said, "not under our law. The decisions in New York are incontestable and I think illogical on the point. Our Court of Appeals has ruled that a person who has been adjudged insane may be guilty of a crime, if the hallucination which actuated him was a real one; that is, if a sane man acts upon an hallucination which is a reality, he is responsible under the law. "Suppose Thaw had a delusion that he could escape from Matteawan by entering upon a certain plan, and that he forsaw and executed that plan with others and made his escape. His hallucination that he could by that means go away from Matteawan, was a true hallucination and he is therefore a subject for prosecution under the New York law. So application for the return of Thaw to New York could properly be made on the ground that he is under indictment."

THAW'S JAILERS.

M. C. Martineau and C. J. McDonald.

that Mr. Jerome shielded the identity of the "vicious rich" during Thaw's trials in New York.

Thaw's interview attacking Mr. Jerome was given under the same circumstances as his exclusive interview to the Boston AMERICAN yesterday. He insisted on writing all the questions and answers and would brook no interference from the reporter. Here is the interview, just as Thaw dictated it:

"Mr. Thaw was told by counsel that Mr. Jerome had arrived.

"Ah," said Harry, "you mean the learned counsel for the chicken trust? Who is he representing now? The Benevolent Protective Association or Mr. Blank, or Mr. Blank, or Mr. Blank?

Q.—Who is Mr. Blank and Mr. Blank, Harry? A.—You never saw the official record of my first trial.

Q.—No, were Mr. Blank and Mr. Blank examined there? A.—Yes. Mr. Blank and Mr. Blank and Mr. Blank. Well, there were five Blanks altogether.

Q.—Who were they? A.—They were gentlemen who could testify they had seen things in certain haunts that the Boston AMERICAN in an editorial told about.

Q.—What did counsel for the Benevolent Protective Association do about it? A.—Why he was just as gentle and as soothing as he could be.

Q.—He got the names, didn't he, Harry? A.—Yes, he got them, and he said in open court he would like particularly of these gentlemen if they were sworn whether they could support her (Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's) testimony.

Q.—Did he put any of them on the stand? A.—Well, it is possible he found they could not discredit her testimony, for after hearing all the names he could not disprove a word she said.

"High Names" Shielded.

Q.—Then did he as a public officer admit that what she said was true? A.—Do you know that counsel for the Ice Trust was not that sort of a public officer.

Q.—Why did not the stenographer take down the names, Harry? A.—These were not the names of common people like you and me, I was told, but distinguished and influential gentlemen. Not even the judge was permitted to hear them. The fact that they were not made public known made it not a legal trial. In other words, the names of these gentlemen were higher than the law of New York.

Q.—Is the learned counsel for the Chicken Trust, now arrived here as special ambassador to the government of His Majesty's Dominion of Canada, did his full duty to those Blanks? A.—Mr. Messrs. Blank and Blank—five Blanks! A.—Indeed, yes. At my second trial Mr. Jerome surprised everybody by speaking about those people almost as if they were ordinary Americans who had misbehaved themselves.

Q.—Why did he do this? Was there any possible reason for his revealing some of the real facts about these semi-scared gentlemen? A.—Well, to be just to Mr. Jerome, my counsel thought there were different reasons. As I have told all White Plains all the counsel told me and told all my family that they thought it was a case of "in vinus veritas" on the part of the celebrated lawyer for the Benevolent Protective Association.

Canadian Counsel Silent.

Thaw said he might have an additional word on the interview later in the day. The case presented a complicated aspect. There were reports of various lines of action, which might be followed, and it was noticeable that counsel for the Dominion government did not disclose their hand. They have maintained a discreet silence.

There was a recurrence of the report that the habeas corpus proceedings might be discontinued at the last minute, in fact the coming of Jerome with his counsel to be deported, will have its case 'ons thrown a bomb shell into the ranks of the Thaw lawyers.

If Thaw's counsel actually discontinues the habeas proceedings the fugitive will be arraigned on the warrant charging him with being a fugitive and will be turned over to the immigration officials. Ex-Governor Stone insists that the immigration law, under which Thaw may be may not be deported, will have its constitutionality tested.

"It never has been tested," said the ex-Governor, "since it was passed three years ago."

This indicates that American legal methods, involving every technical delay known to jurisprudence, will be introduced in Canada if Thaw's present program is carried out.

Will Visit Chalmer.

Thaw was in better humor today. He telegraped a reply to John Armstrong Chalmer of Virginia, a fugitive from New York who was formerly pronounced insane by the New York courts. Thaw said he would visit Chalmer if he got out of prison. Chalmer is the author of the celebrated query 'Who's boning now?' this being the question he telegraphed to his relative, Robert Chalmer, after the latter lost the bulk of his fortune to his fascinating wife, Lina Cavalieri, the singer.

All the passion of Harry Thaw was aroused when he heard that his archenemy, the former district attorney, had arrived. The very knowledge that at the foot of the hill was the one man whom he most fears, and the man who, if any man can, is able to put him back in the insane asylum, nearly brought on a nervous collapse.

JEROME SAVED 'VICIOUS RICH,' DECLARES THAW

AIRSHIP FLIGHT LATEST PLAN FOR THAW'S ESCAPE

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 26.—A daring plot for Thaw's escape by means of an airship is believed to account for the mysterious presence of two aeroplanes near Coaticook.

It is said that once Thaw is on his way to the border, a dash will be made for one of these aeroplanes and that when the Matteawan fugitive lands he will be far beyond the reach of Vermont sheriffs.

Two aeroplanes have been reported from the vicinity of Coaticook, the Canadian frontier village at which point Thaw is to be deported, and this morning in Sherbrooke it has been reported that they are to be used in assisting Thaw to evade the American officers.

Public sentiment in this part of Canada has veered in favor of Thaw. The Canadians want to give him a fair deal. The immigration officials who are to try him have not hesitated to declare that there is no charge against him; that their duty is merely to send him out of Canada.

Then they don't care where he goes nor how, so long as he passes over the border. The immigration officers deny that they are going to hand him over to the waiting American officers.

Hopes Thaw Will Escape.

One of them in a private conversation expressed the hope that he would get safe away. The deportation will occur sometime Wednesday night and there is nothing in the world to prevent Thaw from flying into the air in a sailing aeroplane, passing thousands of feet above the Vermont police and alighting before daybreak in Southern Vermont, New Hampshire or even in Massachusetts.

This scheme of escape is said to have been suggested by George McLeish and Von Hoffman, friends of Thaw, and to have been worked out in detail.

District Attorney Jerome himself, according to Canadian officials, was guilty of a breach of custom when he entered Canada by automobile over the road and not at one of the usual points of entry. Information has even been laid against Mr. Jerome by a citizen of Sherbrooke, who demanded that Jerome be deported as an undesirable immigrant.

Investigation developed that Jerome had been seen by a custom's official, who, is the absence of immigration officers, has the right to admit travelers.

Even Thaw's lawyers were thrown into a near-panic on the arrival of the prosecutor, and their fear was shown when it was announced that the scheme to allow the Canadian government to deport Thaw without fighting for his retention in the country may be abandoned.

Lieutenant-Governor Stone, who is in charge of the Thaw forces, himself appeared worried and anxious as to the outcome.

"I don't know that we shall consent to let the immigration authorities deport Thaw," he said. "On the contrary, I believe we shall fight it out here instead of in Vermont."

Fight Until Snow Flies.

Mr. Stone was asked how long he thought he could maintain a contest in Canada.

"I believe that Harry Thaw will be here until snow flies and perhaps longer," he declared.

Another disturbing factor to the Thaw defence is the presence of Captain Lanyon, who, as an assistant to Attorney Jerome, his come on a "mission of mystery."

Captain Lanyon first won the attention of Mr. Jerome when he collected evidence against Thaw and found several important witnesses who had disappeared and whom the District Attorney was particularly anxious to locate.

His mission in Sherbrooke is not clear, but it is believed that he is in charge of the preparations for Thaw's reception in Vermont, when he crosses the border.

Women Write to Thaw.

Thaw is receiving scores of letters daily from women sympathizers. A majority of them have come from young women in Canada, although New York State is represented in the number. Twenty of them he exhibited, to show how public sentiment regarded his case.

One was from Laura Haas of Buffalo, who declared that she and her many acquaintances in New York believed that he had been punished enough and that he ought to be released. She begged him to bear up and trust in the fairness of the Canadian government.

"Cheer up, Harry, and trust in the Lord," wrote another woman as the concluding line of a "poem" in which she expressed her sentiments. All of the letters are of the same tenor.

"You show the way people feel about my case," said Thaw. "If my case were left to a jury anywhere I would be found sane and set free. If it were not for the conspiracy against me, I would have been free long ago."

Dr. R. F. C. Kleb of Matteawan is expected into today, but the reasons for his coming are not known. He was ordered merely to "assist in the efforts to have Harry Thaw deported," and just what his duties will be are not announced. In a statement issued before he left Matteawan Dr. Kleb said that the work at the hospital was so pressing that he would have to return within a day or two and that he did not know of what value his services would be in Canada. It is believed, however, that in the event of Thaw's fighting deportation he will be called upon to testify as to Thaw's mental condition while at the New York institution.

TRUE LOVE STORY OF HARRY THAW AND EVELYN NESBIT

Chapter I.

"Heaven from all creatures hides the book of Fate,
All but the page prescrib'd, their present state."
—POPE'S "ESSAY ON MAN."

On a recent evening in Winthrop two young married couples, meeting for the first time, chatted and laughed about the inexplicable turns of fate which bring people together into marriage.

One wife related meeting her future husband at a dance and not being overmuch taken with his appearance, either.

The other wife, born in a Massachusetts village, told how she happened, through a girl friend, to meet a young man from a Connecticut town and how he wooed and won her.

From this the talk turned to playful banter of "Suppose we had never met." Questions were raised whether Fate planned it all out in the first place or whether it "just happened."

Then somebody said: "Think of the Fate that planned the Thaw case," and, after much more talk, the question whether it was all fated beforehand or whether it came as it happened was left to older and wiser philosophers.

But on one point all agreed: The love story of Evelyn Nesbit and Harry Thaw was the stellar romance-tragedy of modern American life and no sensational novel ever written exceeded in strangeness the events leading up to and culminating in the shooting of Stanford White by Harry Thaw on account of Evelyn Nesbit.

In 1853 Mrs. Richard White, wife of a noted author and critic of New York city, gave birth to a son who was named Stanford.

From early childhood the boy was gifted. He was endowed particularly with a sense of the beautiful—the beautiful in form, in color and in life.

Stanford White was highly educated, in accordance with his parents' means, their position in the cultured element of New York and their proper expectations for their son.

The son was sent to the College of the City of New York, whence he was graduated in 1875. He had elected colorsas in art and architecture in college and when he succeeded to take his place among men he decided to make architecture his life work.

He entered the office of two of New York's most successful architects. His work soon brought him attention, then praise, then fame. His first assignment of real importance came when he was detailed as assistant architect for the erection of Trinity Church in Boston. This structure, situated on famous Copley square, was such an architectural triumph that Sanford White, as assistant architect, reaped a great deal of professional glory.

Designed Boston Library.

It was not so many years later that, as a member of one of the most famous architectural firms of modern times, McKim, Mead & White, the young man was destined to design a splendid public library on the opposite side of Copley square in that same city of Boston, which architectural creations proved the ideals of a genius, had gross knowledge of feminine frailties.

Family Believes That Natural Talent Would Assist Him in Work.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 26.—Friends of the Thaw family are reported to be quietly seeking a business opening for Harry Thaw, following his expression of determination to come back to his old home and lead a useful life.

He was asked if he meant that he intended to go to work, and replied that he did.

It has not been determined how to place him. He has a pronounced fondness for writing, and it has been suggested that he go to work as a reporter on one of the Pittsburgh papers. Thaw has already written ten articles for newspapers in the East and has several pieces of verse to the credit of his authorship.

Fannie Rounds, 'Love Duel Girl,' Married

Becomes Bride at Cambridge of De Forest Edwards of Ohio.

Miss Fannie E. Rounds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Rounds of Cambridge, and George DeForest Edwards, of Marion, O., an electrical engineer, were wedded by the Rev. E. M. Gushee, pastor of St. Phillip's Church, Cambridgeport. The ceremony was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Rounds and Miss Louise Edwards, a sister of the groom. The young couple left on an extensive honeymoon trip to the West.

Miss Rounds disappeared from her home in Cambridge several months ago after the duel in which her brother, William J. Rounds, Jr., a page in the House of Representatives, and Herbert Larner, a Rhodes Technical School athlete, participated. She sympathized with Larner.

"OLD, OLD STORY," CRIES DOROTHY DIX

VIRTUE AND VICE NEVER BETTER ILLUSTRATED THAN IN THE CASE OF EVELYN THAW

By DOROTHY DIX

Does it pay to be good?

Tens of thousands of poor girls avid for pleasure, longing to ride in luxurious automobiles and feast on dainty food in gay restaurants; madly anxious for the lovely clothes that would enhance their charms, as a fine frame sets off a picture, are asking themselves that question. Does it pay to be good?

They know that like the millionaire in the old song, their faces are their fortunes, and that beauty and youth are assets that a woman can cash in at sight. The streets of every big city are the Mount of Temptation upon which the Devil takes every poor, pretty little drudge, and shows her, spread out before her, all that the foolish, feminine heart can crave of ease and softness. And it is all hers for the taking.

He shows her both sides of the picture. He shows her virtue hanging on to a strap in a crowded car, while vice rolls by in a limousine. He shows her virtue, shabby, fainting with weariness behind the counter, while vice bolls in front of it, buying silks and satins. He shows her virtue going to bed hungry in a dingy hall bedroom, while vice sups at a lobster palace. He shows her virtue clutching its thin little pay envelope, while vice draws down its thousands, and flaunts its name in electric letters a foot high along Broadway.

No wonder young girls ask, Does it pay to be good?

The Case of Evelyn Thaw.

For answer let us consider the case of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who furnishes the most cynical illustration of this subject that mind of civilization has ever seen. For no woman of our day has been so written about and discussed: no woman—not Bernhardt, nor Julia Marlowe, nor Maude Adams—has ever received such a preposterous salary as she gets for a few minutes' appearance on the stage.

Believe me, sir, and women like her, KNOW whether it pays to be good

Here the Story of Many.

The story of Evelyn Thaw is so interesting one in this connection, because in its setting and in its potentialities it is the story of the chance and the temptation that comes to so many poor and pretty girls. It is the eternal problem of the woman who wants the good things of life, and who can get them only in one way, by buying them with her soul.

Evelyn Thaw is a type of woman that is peculiar to America and common in this country—women who come of poor and humble families, but who are born with the instincts for luxury of a princess and the bearing and presence of the great world. You see them in every little village—girls who are as chic as Parisiennes, who wear their little home-made clothes as if they came from a couturier, and for Rue de la Paix, and who are irresistably drawn to the bright lights of great city as a moth is attracted to the flame.

Evelyn Nesbit was one of these. She was born on a Christmas day in Allegheny, a suburb of Pittsburgh. Her mother was beautiful, her father a gay devil-may-care, and the one parent she got her looks and the other her mercurial nature—as dangerous a combination as evil itself could bequeath a girl.

All her early life they were very poor, and when the father died—which he did when Evelyn was ten or eleven years old —they were poorer still. Mrs. Nesbit tried to make a living with her needle, but barely succeeded in keeping the wolf from the door.

The little family went from Allegheny to Philadelphia, hoping for better things, but luck failed to smile on them. They were so poor that Mrs. Nesbit cut up her sheets to make underclothing for herself and Evelyn, and her bedspreads to make linen dresses. Then some one who noted the girl's rare loveliness got a position to pose for some photographs.

The Trial Awakened Her.

But the trial stripped the veil from her eyes. She came out of it knowing good and evil, and the knowledge has dimmed her beauty and taken from her the ethereal charm that was its highest note. There is nothing remarkable about her now. You may meet a thousand like her any day along Broadway.

I wonder how Evelyn Thaw, in view of her life and all it has brought her of good and ill, would answer that question. Does it pay a girl to be good?

I think that no one could preach such a homily on the subject as this poor girl who sold her birthright for a few silks and a rag of chiffon and good times, and who knows the price she has paid.

DOROTHY DIX.

HEROINE OF MOST HIDEOUS STORY OF WITNESS STAND

Yet her sole claim to distinction is that her very garments drip with the slime of the gutter, and that she is the heroine of the most hideous and decadent story that was ever told upon the witness stand.

In all her life she has done no noble or worthy act. From her very childhood she has passed from scandal to scandal. Her once great beauty is gone. She has no talent. Yet thousands of people pay nightly to see her do a foolish little dance that any debutante can do as well, with three lessons. There's simply nothing to her but the dark aura of her past.

No other woman has ever capitalized her sins at such a figure as Mrs. Thaw has done. But after her little dance, when she waved her hands to the audience, whose eyes had been as hard and cold as daggers stabbing her, I wondered if she thought it paid. I wondered if she thought that she had paid too dearly for all she had and all she was getting. If, when she knew that every woman in the house would draw her skirts away from her, and every man would rather see his own daughter dead in her coffin than to be winning such a success in such a way.

Believe me, sir, and women like her, KNOW whether it pays to be good

CALLED MOST BEAUTIFUL MODEL IN ALL NEW YORK

The migration from Philadelphia to the larger artistic world of New York followed naturally, and, armed with letters to painters here, Mrs. Nesbit came, bringing Evelyn, whose beauty was flowering day by day. But, in spite of the romances Mr. Robert Chambers writes about it, the life of an artist model is not one glad round of pleasure and profit, and the Nesbits were still very poor. They lived in one room, where they cooked and slept and Mrs. Nesbit took in such sewing as she could get. Then a newspaper reporter ran across Evelyn and wrote a big Sunday story, illustrated with many pictures of her, which he called "The Most Beautiful Artists' Model in New York."

Fate did the rest. She was engaged by a theatrical manager on the outlook for beauties for his chorus—and she had reached the dividing line in place where she had to choose between poverty and hard work—and the gilded life—the place where she had to ask herself, as the poor, pretty girl does under such circumstances—does it pay to be good?

She decided that it did not pay, and that she thought was the easiest way. Where it has led her all the world knows. Certainly she has had the cakes and ale of existence. First there was a millionaire who used to take her out on his yacht for week-end excursions. Then came Stanford White, and for a while at least it was all like a fairy tale.

She, who had not carfare, rode in cabs and taxis everywhere. She, who had not always had even bread to eat, feasted at the smartest restaurants. She, who had worn the shabbiest of shabby clothes, had fine gowns and jewels lavished on her.

Another turn of the wheel of fortune brought Harry Thaw into her life with more money, more jewels, more trips to Europe, and finally a wedding ring. Being Pittsburgh-born, the Thaws had always been the biggest people on Evelyn's horizon, and to belong to that august family, and queen it socially in the very town in which she had been poor and humble, doubtless filled the measure of her ambition. Evil had prospered with her, and vice had brought her what virtue never could.

Then her sins began to find her out, and her world, built upon a foundation of wrongdoing, commenced to crumble under her feet. Pittsburgh society would not receive her, despite the Thaws' financial and social position. Women, good women, would have nothing to do with her. The scarlet letter was branded upon her too plainly for even the Thaw millions to cover up.

Man Never Forgives.

Also she began to know the cruel fact that while a man, obsessed by passion and in order to get a woman, swears that he will forgive her past lapses from the straight and narrow way and forget them he really never does. When he is married to her he makes of them a whip of scorpions with which to scourge her. The torments of hell can have nothing worse than the mouths in which Evelyn Thaw combated the jealous suspicions of her husband and endured his reproaches.

Then followed the shooting of Stanford White and the two long sham on trials, during which, to save her husband and to earn a fee, justly earned and never paid, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw told a story of her life that for utter degradation has no match in all the annals of sinful humanity. She stripped from herself every vestige of decency and left herself without so much as a rag of honor to cover her.

That this story was not true does not alter her status. She held herself up before the world as shameless beyond all belief until the wonder of it was that any woman could tell such things of herself and live. And now she is coining that story into money.

Be sure that she has paid for all the luxury and finery that she has gotten. Evil collects its debt inexorably. No one, least of all a woman, is so thickskinned as to be impervious to the scorn of one's fellow creatures. Evelyn Thaw has had that in full measure, and under it, and the life it has driven her to, she has coarsened and hardened.

The wonder of her at the trial was the expression of wistful, childlike innocence she wore. I asked a great alienist to interpret that to me, and he said that the reason of it was that her soul was unawakened, that she was morally dead and had never realized the import of the things she did. Hence they had not set their seal upon her as they do upon women who consciously tread the primrose path.

The Trial Awakened Her.

But the trial stripped the veil from her eyes. She came out of it knowing good and evil, and the knowledge has dimmed her beauty and taken from her the ethereal charm that was its highest note. There is nothing remarkable about her now. You may meet a thousand like her any day along Broadway.

I wonder how Evelyn Thaw, in view of her life and all it has brought her of good and ill, would answer that question. Does it pay a girl to be good?

I think that no one could preach such a homily on the subject as this poor girl who sold her birthright for a few silks and a rag of chiffon and good times, and who knows the price she has paid.

BOSTON WOMEN WRITE TO OFFER THAW HELP

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 26.—In the flood of letters and telegrams received by Thaw are many from Boston. A Back Bay woman whose name Thaw refuses to reveal writes:

My dear Mr. Thaw:

Possibly it may be a comfort to you and to Mr. Shurtleff to be advised at this trying time that the very best people of our city are in sympathy with you and regretting very much your being detained. I have lived many years in the Back Bay and never have I heard a word of anything but heartfelt sympathy for you.

In the hotel where I lived during your first trial lived a woman who had been many years a chum of the woman who now blazes your name over a show-house. This woman gave us details the press did not give of the vile life of White and the one you were unfortunate enough to marry.

We all wish you success in this difficult situation. No one who has not been an inmate of an asylum can comprehend its tortures as the long weeks go by.

On notepaper of the Hotel Cecil, London, but written from Boston, J. Addison Patton sent Thaw the following:

Just a line from an unknown friend. It may cause you to smile. Canada is not so solid after all. They don't seem to "chase" you out. Wishing you the best of luck and success, etc.

Robert R. Stacy of No. 238 Walnut street, Newtonville sent a postcard inscribed, "Will be home very dark cloud is already broken. Best of kind wishes."

Mrs. Jean M. Nash wrote a long letter from Boston, offering her services as detective and saying: "You never in a thousand years could get Justice in New York. Keep your health, eat and sleep." Then she offered to come here and help him, for her expenses.

Solves Puzzle in Dividing Estate

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Bishop William Tufaeil Sabine left a mathematical problem in his will. He is survived by nine children. A clause of the document provides that each of the five daughters shall get one and one-half times the amount given each son. The lawyer divided the property into twenty-three parts, of which each daughter is to receive three twenty-thirds of the whole and each of the four sons two twenty-thirds.

Vanderbilt Dinner Guest Is Robbed

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 26.—Louis Reugiere reports to the police he was robbed of a shirt stud and set of diamond links between the time he left his home Sunday evening to attend the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt until he was ready to change his costume to attend Mrs. Astor's dance Monday morning.

750,000 in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—The city directory census, just completed, gives Cleveland a population of 750,000.

Aid in Sight for Child Mill Workers

LOWELL, Aug. 26.—Labor leaders rejoice at the prospects of more than 700 children, all under sixteen, being no longer allowed to work more than eight hours a day in the local mills. The law prevents a striking of an average for the week, and it is said that unless some arrangement can be made conforming to the law, the children will be discharged September 1.

Vaccine Poison Victim Recovers

Mrs. Emma J. Hayes of Lynn, who has passed the critical stage of her illness from vaccine poisoning, is not certain how she was stricken. She believes she opened a small pimple after bathing the arm of her daughter who had just been vaccinated.

Mrs. Hayes, who had never been vaccinated, suffered terribly, the poison affecting her nose, mouth, ears, eyes and throat.

U. S. Consular Agent Stabbed.

HUELVA, Spain, Aug. 26.—William J. Alcock, United States consular agent here, who was stabbed by an insane man, is believed to be out of danger.

TWO of the later phases of Evelyn Thaw's life story. As a witness at her husband's trial for the slaying of Stanford White, and as she appears today in the vaudeville dancing act with her stage partner, Jack Clifford.

MONEY MAKES THAW CASE, DR. M'ARTHUR SAYS

"Money money money!" That is the story of Harry K. Thaw's life, according to the text preached by Robert S. McArthur of New York, who is occupying the Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers' pulpit at Tremont Temple during the latter's vacation.

He declared that but for the power of Thaw's money Thaw would be just one insane man among an asylum full of insane men today. He said:

"His whole life Thaw business is very distasteful to all decent people. The man, when you give him all the pity that he deserves, is a degenerate, craving more or less publicity. Certainly he is getting it.

Should Not Be Free.

To me and many others the whole occurrence makes disgusting reading. Money has given him prominence. He would be an ordinary self-respecting person in an insane asylum if this money had been left out. But money keeps him going and it is strange to me that his relatives do not agree upon some plan to keep him in custody.

Why should he be allowed freedom? He is not safe, or so far he has not given the public any evidence that he is a safe man to be going free.

Suppose he gets his freedom, and gets back into social life again, which I hope will not occur, he will undoubtedly figure in some other event that will be just as harrowing as the one that sent him at first to an asylum.

If money saves that man and restores him to the community instead of to the asylum, I think that we shall have occasion to deplore some uses to which money can be turned.

Might Let Others Go.

The whole effect of Thaw's life has an air about it that is repellent. If Thaw is given his freedom, why not give others their freedom in insane institutions that are not in the same class with Thaw, but are much better than he every way without the money.

Think how many dollars have been spent upon this man, that if spent upon hundreds of others would have shown some good results. You can't make anything out of Thaw but a man who needs to be watched.

Railroad Board to Open Wage Hearings

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The arbitration board which is expected to adjust the wage dispute between the Eastern railroads and their trainmen will begin hearings in September. Dr. John H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York, is the sixth member of the board.

PICK JURY FOR "SLAVE" TRIAL OF CAMINETTI

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—The work of selecting a jury to hear the trial of F. Drew Caminetti, accused of being a white slaver, began today before Federal Judge Van Fleet. The government attorneys followed the same methods in questioning talesmen as in the case of Maury I. Diggs, Caminetti's companion, who was convicted of the same offence last week. The evidence in the two cases was nearly identical and the same testimony offered against Diggs by Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris, the two Sacramento high school girls who eloped to Reno with the two men, was ready for presentation against Caminetti.

Judge Van Fleet had before him Mrs. C. D. Lane to show cause why she should not be punished for attempting to influence Juryman Bliss in the Diggs case.

Judge Van Fleet said to her:

I am forced to feel that there was no settled purpose to influence the juror. Your statement regarding your friendly relations with Mrs. Caminetti gave the affair a very unpleasant appearance. The natural tendency of your sex to desire to help friends is well known. As no evil result followed, I am glad I am not called upon to visit punishment, for in cases of this kind punishment would be severe. You are discharged.

Simultaneously with the Caminetti trial there will come up for trial today the Western Fuel cases. These also received national attention with the Diggs-Caminetti cases, because former United States District Attorney John L. McNab, in his famous letter to President Wilson, accused the Washington authorities of trying to delay the Fuel cases as well as the White Slave trials.

The offence charged against president, vice-president, directors and weighers of the Western Fuel companies is that by manipulating the showing of weights the government was cheated out of hundreds of thousands of dollars. The maximum penalty for the offence is two years' imprisonment, a fine of $10,000, or both.

Isle of Shoals Bride First in 50 Years

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 26.—Twelve miles out at sea on the historic Isle of Shoals the first marriage ceremony in fifty years was performed today when Miss Katherine Robertson of Attleboro became the bride of Richard Hubert of Lynn.

The bride and groom were spending their vacation there. A search of the island was made for a minister and finally Rev. John Henry Wilson of Wilton, N. H., was found. He agreed to unite the couple, and with many of the Summer residents present the ceremony took place.

The Isle of Shoals, the home of Celia Thaxter, the poet, has not been the scene of a marriage ceremony since it was known as the town of Gosport. Fifty years ago the island became a part of Portsmouth and the name was changed.

Illinois Refuses to Recognize Glynn

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 26.—Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara, who arrived in Springfield today, refused to recognize Martin Glynn as Governor of New York and declined to honor a requisition to which Glynn's name was signed. The requisition was received yesterday and was turned over to the Attorney General for an opinion as to who is really Governor of New York.

Brings Water Pipe Row to High Court

In order to compel the Onset Water Company to allow a plumber to make a connection between pipes on his land and the main pipe of the company Eli W. Wordell of Onset brought suit in the Supreme Court today. The company has refused to allow George P. Gibbs, a licensed plumber, to make the connection. The company refuses on the ground that it is against the rules. An order of notice returnable Friday was issued.

Miss J. McIntosh, Cat Fancier, Dead

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 26.—Miss Jannett McIntosh, the best known fancier of cats in New Hampshire and the owner of several which have won blue ribbons, died last night at her home, 574 Spruce street. Miss McIntosh was a native of Fairfield and had been a resident of Manchester thirty years. She was a member of the Manchester Federation of Women's Clubs.

LILLIAN LORRAINE, whose latest fad is to wear an ankle watch—water-proof—in the water at Long Beach, N. J. Cut shows how the innovation appears.

Lillian Swims with a Gold Ankle Watch

And Friends of Miss Lorraine Say Long Beach Is Quiet.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Lillian Lorraine has a water-proof watch. She wears it on her dainty ankle and what's more she wears it on the ankle when she goes in bathing.

The little timepiece is fastened to Miss Lorraine's ankle by a gold circlet. Some people who went to Long Beach this week to spend a few quiet days were disappointed. Lillian appeared daily on the beach in her bathing costume wearing her water-proof watch.

6,000 ENJOY AMERICAN'S MOTHERS' DAY

It was Nantasket's greatest day—that AMERICAN'S Mothers' and Children's Day.

Six thousand mothers and children enjoyed the sail to Nantasket, spent a happy day at he beach and in Paragon Park, and then came home on the boat tired but happy. Each boat load as it landed cheered the AMERICAN.

Four of the steamboats of the Nantasket line were required to bring the mothers and children to the beach.

General Manager Frederick L. Lane of the steamboat company took personal supervision of the transportation of the mothers and children.

Arriving at Nantasket, Manager George A. Dodge of Paragon Park, threw the park open to the AMERICAN'S guests. Park Manager Dodge and Steamboat Manager Lane, vied in making things pleasant at the beach for the AMERICAN'S company.

One of the interesting features at the park during the afternoon was a parade of babies in carriages—for many mothers brought their carriages with them for a stroll along the sands of the beach. They had tots snugly ensconced in the carriages. There were 200 mothers taking part in an impromptu parade of the babies in Paragon Park after their strolls along the beach. The parade of their mothers and little ones was one of the unanticipated features of the day.

Mrs. Elizabeth Doherty of Hattapan, brought seven children to the outing. The youngest was a girl baby of two months, which she carried in her arms. The eldest was a girl of eleven.

Mothers came from all around. Many came even from Hingham.

As the three boats, the Nantasket, Rose Standish and South Shore, pulled out on their return trip, cheers from mothers and children were given for the Boston AMERICAN.

Many at Burial of Mrs. Octave Pothier

WOONSOCKET, Aug. 26.—Many manufacturers and business men of this city attended the funeral services of Mrs. Octave Pothier at the Church of Notre Dame des Victoires. A requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. L. M. L. Giroux. Rev. Napoleon Leclerc was deacon and Rev. J. A. M. Brosseau of Montreal was sub-deacon. Rev. Adrian Forest was master of ceremonies. The body was placed in the Bouvier tomb at the Precious Blood Cemetery.

OH, THE WOES OF THE SLIT SKIRT; POLICE WARN "JOHNNIES"

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26.—Acting Police Chief Dyer has caused consternation among the "johnnies" here by instructing the police to take into custody, or if unable to do that to clear the sidewalks, of all those who stand idly by and rudely stare when a woman garbed in a slit skirt makes her appearance. The chief says, however, that one may take a peep, but no one can brazenly stand and "lamp them."

X-RAY SHOCKS BRIDEGROOM.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—Los Angeles has had its first X-ray bride. She wore a diaphanous wedding gown of white charmeuse and lace through which the light shone with startling effect. Miss Belle Hasaler of Waco, Texas, who has been living with friends in Los Angeles, was married to J. M. Pitcher. Pitcher says he knew nothing about the gown until he walked up the steps of the clergyman's home with Miss Hasaler and the light struck the skirt.

JEERED OUT OF TOWN.

FARRELL, Pa., Aug. 26.—Wearing a creation of the diaphanous gown, Miss Helen Garden Harvedge, who is visiting this city, appeared on the streets with an escort, Hemphill Barton, who wore trousers that were slit from the bottom to the knee. Before they had traversed two blocks they were beamed in by a howling, jeering mob. The police led the couple out of the city.

Strikers Would Tie Up New York Harbor

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Leaders of the striking stevedores of the Hamburg American line today appealed to the stevedores employed by all lines to strike and tie up completely transatlantic traffic in New York harbor. The Hamburg-American liners President Lincoln and President Grant were towed to the Brooklyn piers for loading.

Remove Gamboa Dyke September 1

PANAMA, Aug. 26.—The Gamboa dyke, the last obstruction to the navigation of the Panama Canal by light draft vessels, will not be blown up until September 1. No further delay in the removal of the dyke is expected.

Hold Man on Charge of Stealing 150 Hens

NORTH HANOVER, Aug. 26.—After a two-day chase through the woods by Deputy Sheriff Condon and a posse of police, Fred Corbett of this town was captured and held today for the alleged theft of 150 hens from P. J. Daley of Assinippi. He was near home when caught, and was weak from hunger. He will be arraigned in the Abington District Court tomorrow.

$14,000 School Gift by C. M. Schwab

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Aug. 26.—Charles M. Schwab, made Leonard Hall, a missionary school of the Episcopal Church of the Diocese of Bethlehem, a gift of $14,000. Bishop Ethelbert Talbot of the diocese had succeeded in raising $36,000 of the $50,000 needed to endow the school, which is located here, and Mr. Schwab came to the rescue with the remaining amount needed.

AN HONEST, RADICAL PARTY NATION'S NEED, DECLARES MR. HEARST

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The following telegram by William Randolph Hearst, was delayed in transmission. It did not reach New York until after the Independence League City Committee's meeting at Arlington Hall, had adjourned. The committee nominated John Purroy Mitchell for Mayor.

The telegram was in response to an inquiry from leaders in the Independence League.

A copy of the telegram has been sent to William J. Taylor, chairman of the City Committee:

Tell the Independence Party leaders that I cannot presume to dictate the party policy, but personally I cannot support proven political traitors.

I consider McAneny and Prendergast fully as false as Gaynor, only less clever and more cowardly.

I could not support Gaynor, and I cannot support McAneny or Prendergast, for the simple reason that they secured their election by promises to protect the people in the possession of their public property, and then all three of them abandoned their solemn pledges and surrendered themselves and the public interests to the privilege-seeking and franchise-stealing corporations.

If the Independence Party, which absolutely elected McAneny and Prendergast, countenances this betrayal of its principles and a public trust, it condones a political crime and becomes an accessory after the fact.

"Need for Radical Party."

If the Independence League becomes an accomplice in this treachery and rascality merely for the bribe of a few offices, if it abandons the principles of public ownership and indorses public plunderers merely for a share of the plunder, it becomes no better than the Progressive Party, which operates as the political branch of Morgan & Company on a percentage basis.

There is need for an honest, sincere, radical party in New York and throughout this nation. I intend to support one wherever I find one and to create one wherever there is none.

The name of such a party is of no importance. Its purpose and its principles are all-important, and even a conventional declaration of principle is of small importance when compared with a courageous and conscientious devotion to principle.

All party names are high sounding, and nearly all of them have come to be empty sounding as well. The name Democratic party sounds well—"demou krntos," the power of the people—but the name means little when the party represents the autocratic arrogance of a Tammany boss or the pompous positiveness of a visionary and vain-glorious pedagogue.

The name Republican party sounds well—"res publica," the welfare of the public—but it means little when it represents only the welfare of the privileged few and expresses only debauchery of public life and corruption of public business.

The name Municipal Ownership League sounds well, but it means nothing if it is the title of an organization which stands for the abandonment of public ownership to the public plunderers.

The Independence Party sounds well, but it means nothing if the party is without independence, without a mission or a message; if it is not a prophet but a pauper and sits like Lazarus at the feet of the other parties, complacent and content with the crumbs of office that fall into its eager lap from their laden table.

Go to Root of Evil.

The name Progressive Party sounds well, but has come to mean nothing. I originated the name, I believe, and heaven forgive me for it! At a speech at a League dinner at the Knickerbocker Hotel I said that the word radical, from "radix," a root, had been discredited by the extremists, who wished not so much to get at the root of anything as to tear up the roots of everything.

I said that the word "progressive" was a more fitting phrase for our party. I say now in the light of a greater knowledge and a wider experience that the word progressive has been discredited by the cautious and conservative gentlemen—I may say, conservative gentlemen who are willing to progress no further than the golden leading-strings of Perkins and Morgan and McCormick and Rockefeller will allow them; who are not radical except in the prosecution of those privilege-seeking corporations which patronize other parties, who are not liberal enough to include in their paternal protection all privileged interests, as the Republican party does, but who exercise a fine discrimination in favor of those who pay for the privilege, who march heroically forward to the tune of "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

They reach the doors of Morgan's banking house, where these devoted Christian Soldiers, halt majestically and pass the contribution box expectantly.

The country needs a just but genuine radical party, and let us not be afraid to call it radical and to make it radical, to make it go to the root of all that is evil and to the heart of all that is good.

Punishing Betrayers.

Let us have no conservatism except that which conserves the fundamental republican principles of this government, the liberty, the equality, the independence, the opportunity which have been the beginning of our progress, the keystones of our prosperity.

Let us maintain an uncompromising and unapologizing radicalism to extirpate the influence which threatens the people's rights and in punishing every individual who betrays his people's interests.

Samuel J. Tilden said that the Democratic party would succeed when it had the courage to be democratic. In the same way the Progressive Party will succeed when it has the courage to be progressive and to be independent.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Slices Heel, Avoids Poison by Sting Ray

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 26.—John Swanson who whipped out a fish knife, slashed his heel to the bone, leaped overboard and swam a mile and a half to shore after being wounded by a sting ray, may recover, as the knife cut and the cauterizing by the salt water, will save him if he survives the exhaustion and loss of blood.

WINCHESTER'S 24-OZ. BABY GAINS WEIGHT

The four-months-old baby daughter of Mrs. Bartholomew Connolly of No. 63 Harvard street, Winchester, was weighed today at the Winchester Hospital and found to have gained two ounces during the past two days. The baby now weighs four pounds. It weighed at birth only a pound and a half.

The baby has been fed with mother's milk contributed by mothers in the neighborhood to whom the hospital nurses have gone and asked for milk to save the infant's life. The mothers eagerly joined in the work of saving the baby's life. First, the milk was given the baby by a medicine dropper. Now it is able to drink from an ordinary nursing bottle.

The baby is the smallest ever recorded in Winchester, but is said to be proportioned perfectly, the doctors say, and has every chance in the world to live.

Hurrying Man Hits Inquisitive Farmer

Court Orders Curious Rural One Back to the Farm.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Wallace Goch, a farmer living near Beaver Dam, Wis., arrived in Chicago last Thursday, bent on seeing the sights of the city.

He was walking in Madison street, from the Union Station, when a man ran past him, hurrying to catch his train. He started after the stranger, and caught up with him.

"What's the trouble?" he gasped, seizing his arm.

The stranger struck Goch over the left eye, knocking him down. Both were arrested.

Municipal Judge Doian asked Goch why he had chased the stranger.

"I couldn't help it, Judge. I am awful inquisitive, and when I saw that man racing down the street I just had to find out what it was all about," he explained.

"Goch, I am going to sentence you to your home town," said the Judge. "You will return to Beaver Dam at once."

The other prisoner was discharged.

"Kiss All You Want to," Chicago Advice

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Health Commissioner Young declares: "A kiss is dangerous only when indulged in so as to lead to observation by an angry parent." He defies any physician to prove the contrary.

C. S. St. Clair Drake, who believes in hygienic kissing, had a warning written for the bulletin edited by Commissioner Young. It told of the dangers of osculation, concluding: "Therefore kissing should be avoided—should not be indulged in."

"Cut it out," ordered Young. "Let people kiss all they want to."

Blind Eyes Weep for Thomas Nelson Page

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—There is sorrow among the blind people of Washington who occupy the beautiful reading room of the Congressional Library because of the loss of their "eyes," as they fondly called Dr. Thomas Nelson Page, who is about to leave America. Two or three times a month he thrilled the blind with his masterly reading of "Marse Chan," "Santa Claus' Partners," and selections from "Red Rock."

Hold Brooklyn Man as White Slaver

Antonio Bienzo, arrested in Springfield charged with bringing Italian girls to Holyoke, then from Brooklyn, will be tried in the United States District Court here, September 11, for alleged violation of the Mann act.

Town Buys New Piano.

EAST BRIDGEWATER, Aug. 26.—At the special town meeting last night, the sum of $300 was appropriated for the purchase of a new piano for the town hall.

ISABEL G. LAVERY, heroine of Bass Point to Revere Beach swim, who has entered AMERICAN'S carnival.

Return to Editor of Swimming Carnival, Boston American, 80 Summer St., Boston.

ENTRIES CLOSE TOMORROW FOR SWIM CARNIVAL

Everybody's doing it. Doing what? Getting ready to take in the AMERICAN'S big swimming carnival and race in the Charles River Basin on Saturday, from 2 to 6 P. M.

Remember, there will be no admission fee. The race and aquatic sports are ABSOLUTELY FREE.

Unusual interest is manifested in this year's AMERICAN carnival. More than fifty girls have entered.

It will be the BEST outing of the season.

Everybody can see the races.

Last year 125,000 persons enjoyed the carnival treat. Great praise was given the AMERICAN for conducting the affair.

The Swimming Editor has left nothing undone in preparations to make the event the most successful in the history of the Basin.

Miss Isabel G. Lavery, who has entered her name, on Sunday last swam from Bass Point, Nahant, to Revere Beach, leading her competitors and breaking the record held by Annette Kellermann.

Three Cambridge girls and a Charlestown girl, members of the East Cambridge Swimming Girls' Club, today declared their intention of winning the first four prizes in the big race. They were entered by their manager, William J. Dinan and Joseph A. Sullivan.

Many More Girls Enter.

The girls are:

Helen Spellman, twelve, No. 4 Gore street, East Cambridge.

Allen Reardon, fifteen, No. 590 Cambridge street, East Cambridge.

Etta Green, twelve, No. 60 School street, Charlestown.

Mabel Merrideli, fifteen, No. 106 Thorndike street, East Cambridge.

Others who entered today are:

Frances Reonds, fifteen, No. 10 Lee street, Roxbury.

Cecilia Fleming, fifteen, Weston place, Roxbury.

Mae Barry, nineteen, No. 44 Washington street, Charlestown.

Ruth Myers, twelve, No. 47 Nevada street, Winthrop.

Josephine Ryan, sixteen, No. 2 Bunnick street, Josephine McCarthy, fourteen, No. 624 East Eighth street, South Boston.

Anna Barry, eighteen, No. 9 Elm street, Dorchester.

Hope Barrett, sixteen, No. 21 Benton street.

Frances H. Fowler, fifteen, No. 23 Follen street.

Mary Fitzgerald, sixteen, No. 5 Mill street, Dorchester.

Molly Hale, eighteen, No. 38 Moseley street, Dorchester.

Anna McNamara.

Zilpa Jackson.

Jennie O'Brien, seventeen, No. 28 Oakland road, Brookline.

Estelle Lande, fifteen, No. 5 Chesterfield street, Roxbury.

Catherine McManus, twelve, No. 9 Chesterfield street, Roxbury.

Edith Lund, fifteen, Grapevine, R. I.

Officials Are Chosen.

The officials of the race are:

Referee—Matthew Mann of the Brookline Gymnasium.

Judges—S. K. Nason of the Brookline Gymnasium; Joseph Goal, swimming instructor at the Curtis Hall Swimming Pool, Jamaica Plain; H. E. Hoole of the Brookline Gymnasium.

Judge at turn—William Murray, swimming instructor at Wollaston Beach.

Timekeepers — Stewart McCullough, Carl Empeaso and Edward Kernan.

Clerk of course—Stanley Phelan.

Starter—Hugh McGrath of the N. E. A. A. U.

REMEMBER, THE ENTRY LIST CLOSES TOMORROW AT 5 P. M.

Every girl who finishes in the big race will receive a handsome medal.

Hear What the Wise Ones Are Saying? Read!

"The State committees," says Congressman Gardner, "are supposed to help elect the party candidates. They should not interfere with the races for the nomination."

* * *

Also men should not steal, and women shouldn't wear silhouette skirts—we'll say. But they do, just the same.

* * *

Wonder if Colonel Benton will join Congressman Gardner in telling the machine to keep its hands off.

* * *

We wot not.

* * *

Edward P. Barry of South Boston is out for Lieutenant-Governor. His idea of Richard H. Long, his opponent, is interesting. Wish we could print it.

* * *

Joseph Ferreira is a candidate for Representative, and got some good advertising through his advocacy of a fence at the "South Wharf" on Albany street. He took a long petition to the Mayor, asking for a fence—and then Councilor Attridge took the wind out of Ferreira's sails by arranging to have the South Bay Neighborhood Association build the fence.

* * *

John F. McCarthy, who probably knows more about inside facts in the Police Department than any other man on Beacon Hill, is counting on re-election. He fathered the "Rotten Egg" bill and fought for pure food in the last session. Next year he will introduce—unless something slips—a bill to prevent the police arresting "neglected" children with patrol wagons, as in the Somerville and Charlestown outrages.

* * *

Representative McCarthy will also put in a bill forcing pawnbrokers to notify persons who pledge property before that property is sold for the debt.

* * *

Senator Bellamy says he is coming back next year on his record during the last session. He was for the initiative and referendum, the income tax and the pure food bills. Everybody in Taunton who doesn't hate to bet on a sure thing is backing Bellamy to win.

* * *

Senator Quigley of Holyoke—Governor Foss' personal representative in the upper House last year—is out of the fight for re-election, though he received both party nominations and was assured of victory.

The whisper is that Washington is responsible. Quigley has been in the political game long enough to look where he's going to land before he leaps out of a good place.

* * *

The postmaster of Holyoke has a right nice job.

* * *

A requisition from Governor Foss for a prisoner held in New York was honored the other day by Acting Governor Glynn of New York. Apparently the Governor is having a hand in holding what Governor in the Empire State as well as in this great and glorious Commonwealth.

* * *

Judging from Judge Riley's recent discussion of Governor Foss—he talked about "cowardly acts" and "vicious false books" and "manipulated Box," etc.—Judge Riley must be in training to run against Roosevelt on the Progressive ticket in 1916.

* * *

Whitfield Tuck, Democratic candidate for Senator in the Sixth Middlesex District, demands that Governor Foss resign, because he says the Governor is "no Democrat."

* * *

James R. Garfield, former Secretary of the Interior, dropped into Boston—he is a Progressive—and was drawn into a discussion of Gardner.

"Looks like Gardner was put in as a stop-gap by the national machine leaders, doesn't it?" he was asked.

"Well, Gardner jumped through the hoop when the Barnes-Penrose machine cracked their whip a year ago," he admitted.

* * *

Timothy J. Connolly of Ward 17 is worried. He filed nomination papers for the fight for Senator in the Fourth Suffolk District. But his name was omitted from the early published list of candidates. Connolly wants it understood that he's in the fight to the finish.

* * *

Albert J. Connell of the Seventeenth Suffolk District is another whose name was omitted. He is out for Representative and writes: "From remarks of my acquaintances the impression seems to prevail that I am not a candidate." Don't let your acquaintances "get your goat," Mr. Connell.

* * *

Congressman Gardner has two campaign committees, Colonel Benton has one—not counting the machine.

Buys Race Track.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 26.—It was reported here today that James Butler, the millionaire sportsman of New York, had purchased the race track at Laurel, Md. from "Curley" Brown for a price in the neighborhood of $250,000. Butler is said to have given a check for $10,000 to bind the deal.

U. S. NOT READY FOR WAR CRISIS, SAYS GARRISON

DENVER, Col., Aug. 26.—A warning was sounded by Secretary of War Garrison in an address at Fort Logan, in which the member of President Wilson's official family said that the United States is absolutely unprepared to meet a crisis.

"Wars come suddenly," said Secretary Garrison. "If the United States should be plunged into conflict with a first class power, we would need 600,000 trained men. We have a regular army of 33,000 men, just three times as many men as the city of New York's police department contains, and a national guard strength that would bring the total up to 150,000.

"I would like to see the term of enlistment cut from three years to one year and the present standing army made the training school for the greatest possible number of untrained men at the least possible expense."

Mayor Blames High Tax on "Dodgers"

$17.50 Rate in Boston Highest City Has Ever Known.

Boston's newly announced tax rate of $17.50 on the thousand, eighty cents more than the rate for the past three years, is the highest in the history of the city. It is twenty cents higher than that of 1884, previously the record assessment.

Mayor Fitzgerald attributes the high tax rate to tax dodgers, a 35 per cent. increase in four years in the School Department, over which he has no control of expenditures, and to big increases in the State and metropolitan assessments.

Think Girl Eloper Has Come to Boston

Post Card Clew to Annie Murphy in Double Elopement.

Miss Annie Murphy is supposed to be in Boston.

If you have seen her, notify her parents, who live at No. 209 West One Hundred and Twentieth street, New York.

She was one of two girls who ran away with two New York chauffeurs in a double elopement. Her friend Miss Elsie Werner of No. 151 East Ninety-Seventh street, New York, received the first clew of Annie's whereabouts when a postcard arrived from one of the chauffeurs with the missing girl.

It was dated Boston. It read: "I am sorry you are not of the party; having a good time; will write you a long letter in a few days."

The four elopers disappeared with the automobile of Dr. Emil A. Mulled of No. 216 East One Hundred and Twentieth street, New York. Besides Annie, there was Miss Katie Ryan, fifteen, of No. 158 East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, Adolph Nebers, nineteen, of No. 155 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street and James Murphy, twenty-one, who lived with Dr. Mulled.

Throng Nantasket for Big Carnival

Another record crowd was at Nantasket today for the second day of the carnival week and Mardi Gras. This afternoon there will be motor boat races over a course laid between Atlantic Hill and Point Allerton, and free shows, concerts, balloon ascensions and other diversions. Tonight there will be another program of interest, with a fireworks display as one of its main features.

The carnival committee has to entertain them. Besides concerts by two brass bands, there were vaudeville shows at different points, with Punch and Judy shows for the children and a corps of trick cyclists performing at frequent intervals.

Child Dies at Bon Fire.

LOWELL, Aug. 26.—Margaret Crowley, six, of No. 56 Fulton street, was burned to death in playing about a bonfire.

What Telegraph Operator Has Seen Longest Service?

Is It Miss Z. E. Carter?

Miss Z. E. Carter.

The AMERICAN'S search for the telegraph operator who has seen the longest continuous service has resulted in a score of contestants already.

Prominent among the veterans is Miss Z. E. Carter, who is in charge of the Western Union key at Athol station of the Boston & Maine Railroad. She has been an operator for forty years. Her name was sent in by Miss Cora Mills of No. 77 Highland avenue, Athol.

Miss Carter began telegraphing at Shelbourne Falls in September, 1873. Five years later she went to Athol and has been there ever since.

The AMERICAN will give $25 to the discoverer and an equal amount to the operator sought.

The contestants must be in active service now.

Replies must all be in by Friday, August 29.

Sewell Leaves York Mysteriously

Note He Left to Wife Apparently Accuses Her.

YORK BEACH, Aug. 26.—Eugene Sewell, proprietor of the Hastings-Lyman Hotel on Union Bluffs, has left York under mysterious circumstances. He left the following note to his wife:

"I have had two detectives following you all Summer. I am leaving for parts unknown. GENE."

The Hastings-Lyman has about two hundred guests, and an examination of the hotel's books was today begun. The disappearance is under investigation by Mrs. J. W. Hogarth, and is apparently a profitable enterprise, though no money was found in the safe today.

Sewell has a wife and a boy three years old. He is about thirty-five, a trustee in the York Bank, and a graduate from Dartmouth in the late nineties.

SAVE FIFTY HORSES IN LYNN 2-ALARM FIRE

Two alarms were sounded for a fire that broke out in Michael Ray's stable on Central avenue, Lynn, today. The fire spread to surrounding houses under a high wind, and tenants hurried their belongings into the streets to get out of range of the flames.

Fifty horses in the stable were saved. The loft was full of hay, and the two-and-a-half story structure flamed up like oil-soaked cloth. After an hour's fight the fire was not yet under control.

Tufts Class Day Leads to Romance

Mabelle Finlay and W. M. Jones to Wed in Goddard Chapel.

A Tufts college class day meeting led to the romantic friendship of Mabelle Finlay and William Mosier Jones, who are to be married in Goddard Chapel at Tufts in October.

Miss Finlay is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Finlay of Chelsea. Jones, Tufts '12, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Jones of No. 16 Rockland street, Swampscott. He is a structural engineer for the New England Construction Company of Everett.

Jones and Miss Finlay were introduced at a Class Day dance in Goddard Gymnasium at Tufts. They had a number of dances together during the evening, and Jones asked permission to call.

Cities Menace Race, Asserts Dr. Eliot

Says Smaller Families Show Havoc of Civilization.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 26.—President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard College, addressing the delegates of the fourth International Congress on School Hygiene, of which he is the founder, in session here today, said: "The progressive civilization of the last hundred years has worked terribly against the health and prosperity of the whole race. This is seen in the reduced vitality of the multitudes that inhabit crowded cities, in the diminishing size of families, in the incapacity of many women to bear and nurse children, and in the disproportionate increase in the number of the insane, defective and criminally inclined."

Charge Two Boys Set Barn Afire

ROCKLAND, Aug. 26.—Charged with setting afire to eighteen tons of hay and a barn owned by B. F. Burke, eight-year-old Robert Cunningham and William, his ten-year-old brother, were taken from this town for trial at the Abington District Court today. They are alleged to have burned the barn, after being whipped by their mother for setting fire to some rubbish in their own yard.

Rutland's Street Fair Thursday

The first street fair of the season in this section of the East will be held on Thursday, August 28, at Rutland, Mass. The big feature will be a real old-fashioned coaching parade. Athletic games, a fine continuous vaudeville show, a midway built along the principal street and noted speakers are among the other attractions.

Notables Return on the Franconia

Among the passengers aboard the Franconia, due to arrive here Wednesday, are Bishop William Lawrence and family, Dr. Ernest F. Nichols, president of Dartmouth College, and Mrs. Nichols, and daughter Esther; A. B. Chapin, vice-president of the American Trust Company and Mrs. Chapin, and Assistant District Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle and Richard Twelling.

Customs Men Seize 5 Boa Constrictors

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Acting Deputy Surveyors Harris and Murphy have taken in charge two snake dealers coming from the ship Albemania, just in from South Africa. In three sacks they had five boa constrictors, seven monkeys and twenty parrakeets.

Aviator Hawker Now at Aberdeen

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Aug. 26.—With nearly one-third of his long trip completed, Harry G. Hawker, the aviator who set out yesterday on his second attempt to fly around Great Britain, continued his aerial voyage today. He arrived here at 11 o'clock, having completed about 500 miles of his trip.

Long Objects to Birthday Fuss

BINGHAM, Aug. 26.—Out of respect to the wishes of Ex-Governor John D. Long, the public observance of his approaching birthday, seventy-fifth, has been given up by the committee in charge.

CASSIDY SHOWS HOW GLUCOSE LAW BENEFITS

Mr. Cassidy believes that when you pay thirty cents to $1.00 a pound for candy, you have a right to get real candy. Unfortunately you often don't, because of the presence of too much glucose, used as a substitute for sugar.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

I recently had occasion to help in the framing of a new Health Code for Atlantic City. One of the most important features was, that glucose, when used in candy, should be declared.

Reputable candy manufacturers stated they thought 15 per cent. of glucose ought to be allowed. I accordingly accepted 15 per cent. as the limit of glucose, unless the presence of more than 15 per cent. was declared on the label.

But some of the candy makers protested against either glucose or resinous glaze being declared on the label. They wanted to use glucose in any quantities they saw fit.

I believed 15 per cent. fair, because reputable candy makers assured me that 15 per cent. glucose has a real use to candy makers, as it prevents crystallization of sugar and keeps the candy in a plastic or apparently fresh state.

Glucose Cheaper.

Sugar for use in candy costs about five cents a pound. Glucose costs two cents a pound. It is evident that a pound of candy which contains 60 per cent. of glucose costs less to make than if it contained 60, or preferably 80 per cent of sugar.

The new Health Code allows the use of 15 per cent. glucose, without any notice whatever to the buyer. It allows the candy maker to put in more glucose, as much as he wants to, provided he notify the buyer just how much glucose he has used.

Could anything be fairer to maker and purchaser? Both know what they are offering in the deal, the maker his candy, the consumer the price of the product.

But the candy maker's object. They want to use glucose in any quantity and keep in ignorance the women and children who give their pennies for the candy.

Could anything be more unfair to the candy users than this?

Girl's Plea to Wilson Admits Dog to Park

President Overrules Yellowstone Edict After Her Letter.

PARSONS, Kan., Aug. 26.—President Wilson has cut Yellowstone National Park red tape to allow Ethel Probst of this city to take her dog Fannie into the big reservation. The girl wrote the President as follows:

My father is soon to take the management of a hotel in Yellowstone National Park. We have been informed that no dogs are allowed in the park confines. Mr. President, you don't know how sorry I am to hear this. I am 18 years old and our old dog Fannie is the same age. We have never been separated and I cannot bear the thought of leaving her behind. She is very old for a dog and would not be able to harm any of the park animals.

VICTOR MOORE AGAIN AT TOP OF KEITH BILL

"Change Your Act or Go Back to the Woods," a sketch that is "all his own," is Victor Moore's production at Keith's Theatre this week. Nonsense, it is called, and it is nonsense of the lunch provoking type which gives play not only to the comedy in Moore's acting, but whatever comedy there is in the stage hands, Doc O'Neil, Miss Emma Little field, who plays with Mr. Moore, and others who are dragged in by force.

Miss Moore herself has much of the difficult work to do. She is an ingenue, a dancer, and many other things combined, and assists the topliner admirably.

Another sketch which caught the fancy of the audience was presented by Ben Deely and company, in "The New Bell Boy." Mr. Deely is the new bell boy, in a hotel with more stories than the Woolworth building, and more laughs than a Joke book. Marie Wayne, the telephone operator, does most of the work in the hotel, and calls for a large share of the laughs.

Of an entirely different nature is the act by Miss Rae Eleanor Ball, a violin virtuoso visiting Boston for the first time. Miss Ball mingles classical with popular music, and completely captured her audience.

Doc O'Neil, in monologue, has a new lot of jokes, and others on the bill are the Three Burtos, men of wonderful physical development; Roser's aerial dogs, animals trained in balancing and slack wire walking; Goodrich, Moore and Klaiss, in "Camping;" Billy and Edith Adams in songs; and Tom Mosher and company in new cycling feats.

Waldron's Casino.

Billy B. Watson and his "Girls from Happyland" brought two big audiences to the Casino Theatre yesterday. There is no comedian in burlesque who has a stronger following than the amusing Mr. Watson, and anyone who sits in his presence for fifteen minutes becomes a loyal believer in his style of good humor. Although Watson furnished most of the fun in yesterday's performances, there were plenty of lively girls—and pretty girls, too—who carried their share of the fun on pretty shoulders. The Billy Watson show is always sure of a week of good business when it reaches the Casino, and the way things began yesterday there is no doubt of the outcome in that direction.

St. James' Theatre.

Ching Ling Foo and his entire company of fourteen Orientals appeared at the St. James Theatre yesterday to the largest audiences that ever patronized this theatre. The Chinese acrobats brought down the house with their sensational feats. Ching Ling Foo remains the entire week at the St. James, which will be their only Boston appearance.

'ALL FOR THE LADIES' IS NEW SHUBERT SHOW

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

The first of the season's crop of musical comedy was not any more of a success for Sam Bernard than it was for the soulless whose kind assistance turned "All For The Ladies" into a fashion parade that gave the women in last evening's audience at the Shubert something to think about for many weeks to come. Mr. Bernard's scrambled English was funnier than any he has struggled with since his golden days with Hoggenheimer, when he moved at the head of the procession among gurgling German comedians.

But even Mr. Bernard's gift of spreading ego-wasted fun was not more pleasing to the ear than the spectacular display of feminine finery was to the eye of every woman in the audience. It was like a dressmakers' convention roiled into one large evening. "All For The Ladies" was chiefly "all by the ladies."

The advanced styles that were used as a setting for Mr. Bernard were smart enough to supply an inspiration for any comedian and Mr. Bernard's own view of the dispassionate cataract was made very clear in his one song number, "Persimmins." There was a plain demand for more of this song, which died quietly after two short verses.

As a musical comedy "All For The Ladies" was conventional enough to meet the requirements of modern entertainment. Luxurious treatment rather than musical novelty made it worth your attention and your laughs. The book and lyrics by Henry Blossom were superior in many ways, telling a consistent story of the universally familiar Parisian domestic tangle. You may always expect flirty wives in Parisian musical comedy even when the authorship is distinctly American. Alfred G. Robyn, who supplied the music, made an agreeable job of it. The music had the quality of holding pleasant melody all through the score, although there were no sensational song hits. The easily sustained quality of both the book and the score, with intelligent people working in the important roles, kept the performance on the friendly side of the audience. There were fewer cases in "All For The Ladies" than are usually found in entertainments of its kind.

Mr. Bernard was so much at home in his role of the dueling designer of ladies' gowns that you were forced to take him at his own word, in most things, although his words came hard. His comedy was not too grotesque or affected to be dull, and he was enjoyable in his mixtures—which is saying a good deal for dialect comedians.

Frances Demarest was one of the bright spots in the performance, proving herself capable of intelligent comedy interpretation. She also managed to wear several gowns to considerable advantage. George Schiller had too little to do to be more than a fleeting smile in the entertainment, but Louise Meyers was a delicious ingenue for all there was in it—which included several numbers and a constant aim to be girlish.

"All For The Ladies" gave the Shubert a fair start on its new season, with a promise of many weeks for theatregoers who like their fun and music sprinkled with a fashion plate effect that should be the talk of the town.

Globe Theatre

A lively entertainment was given at the Globe yesterday. Marcus, Helen and LaMar, "The Minstrel Boys," had a twenty minute offering. La Belle Onra, a petite young soubrette, did some clever stunts in middair; the Fredericks entertained with English songs and comedy, and Faust and Faust, a pair of European novelty instrumentalists, scored with their comedy and music.

Howard Athenaeum.

"Ho-Ho" Lougford, the Boston champion, Jack Read, the Australian boxer, Joe Woodman and Jack Sheehan appeared yesterday at the Howard Athenaeum in the sketch called "The Training Camp." The burlesque show was supplied by Eva Mull and her "Beauty Girls."

SAM BERNARD as Leo von Laubenheim and Louise Meyers as Marie in "All for the Ladies" at the Shubert.

Gaiety Theatre.

Those who have not lost the faculty of being entertained by a pleasing combination of fun, music and pretty girls should visit the Gaiety Theatre this week and see the performance of "The Beauty Parade" burlesquers. "Local Color" is the somewhat odd name attached to the two-act burlette. Dash and speed characterize the entire performance and at no time is rendezvous permitted to obstruct a continuous flow of mirthful situations and melodious musical numbers, the story being judiciously interlarded for the time being in order to make the necessary space required for action. Harry Fields, a Hebrew comedian of more than average ability, furnishes most of the fun.

Grand Opera House.

Popular burlesque given by "The Rector Girls" opened at the Grand Opera House yesterday. This company was supplied with five comedians, pretty girls and song specialties that were popular.

Bowdoin Sq. Theatre.

This is the last week of Mascotte's "Forty Merry Maids" at the Bowdoin Sq. Theatre. Vaudeville features are also presented.

Norumbega Park.

The performances of "The Dainty Quakeress" at Norumbega's open air theatre yesterday were greeted with laughter and applause. This fun frolic by Matthew Ott is presented by a company of singers, dancers, comedians and charming show girls.

Bass Point and Nahant

Bass Point and Nahant had one of the biggest Sundays of the season and the steamers of the Bass Point and Nahant line were filled to their capacity on all trips. This sight-seeing trip in Boston harbor, with its sea breezes, puts one in a splendid frame of mind to enjoy all the amusements of Bass Point.

Provincetown Trips

The capacity excursion crowd that took the hundred mile deep sea trip to Provincetown and return on the steamship Dorothy Bradford last Sunday had a splendid view of the new super-dreadnought built by the Argentine Republic, the Rivadavia, which is "cooling" off Fort Warren.

Orpheum Theatre.

A new vaudeville show was presented at the Orpheum yesterday. It was headed by Roland West and company in a farce comedy, "Everybody's Doing It."

Plays That Remain.

"What Happened to Mary" opened a new week at the Majestic Theatre last evening. It is a pretty love story.

"Quo Vadis" entered upon its eleventh week at the Tremont last evening. These pictures are among the most attractive ever exhibited in Boston.

Coming Events.

"The Merry Martyr," a new musical play, will open the season at the Colonial on Saturday evening.

May Irwin, in "Widow by Proxy," will be the opening attraction at the Plymouth. The first performance will be next Saturday evening.

The new season at the Castle Square Theatre will begin on Friday evening with a presentation of "London Assurance."

"The Ghost Breaker," with H. B. Warner, will be the first attraction at the Park, opening next Monday.

The motion picture production of "Les Miserables" will be exhibited at Tremont Temple beginning next Monday.

"Hanky Panky," at popular prices, will arrive at the Boston Theatre next week.

Paragon Park.

The grand carnival and Mardi Gras week at Paragon Park, or that part of the features of this gala week at Nantasket Beach that Paragon Park contributes to the festivities these six days, beginning with yesterday, has started off with a rush. From all over New England excursionists arrived yesterday to take in the sights. Shows of all sorts were given along the state boulevard, and all Nantasket is in gala dress, but the attendance at Paragon Park was bigger than ever before. The crowds at the cabaret in the Palm Garden were specially large.

Lexington Park.

At Lexington Park yesterday a new vaudeville bill was presented in the Rosette Theatre. Heading the bill was the Paul Asard Trio in a sensational gymnastic act.

Sees Visions of Auto Which Hit Her

Little Sophie Murkowitz in Hospital, Run Down by Truck.

Visions of big automobile trucks pass before the eyes of eleven-year-old Sophie Murkowitz as she lies on a white covered cot in the City Hospital ward hovering between life and death.

Sophie was run down by an auto truck owned by the Castle Square Transportation Company in Castle square. The driver was Charles E. Malloy of South Boston.

At first the hospital doctors and nurses feared that she could not survive the terrible experience. Then she became semi-conscious.

"See," she cried, as one of the nurses stroked her forehead. "The big automobile is coming. Stop it! Stop it!"

These visions, the nurses say, appear before the child almost hourly.

DRINK HABIT CONQUERED

Wives, mothers and men themselves are reporting by the hundreds a really effective, safe, quick-acting home method of overcoming the drink habit. A very interesting book, giving important information, illustrated, will be sent in plain wrapper by the author, Edward J. Woods, 534 Sixth Ave., 854N, New York, N. Y., to anyone who applies. Cut out this advertisement and show it to others who may want to save somebody from ruin.

FOSS CONFIRMS AMERICAN ON HIS CANDIDACY

Governor Foss today, when he reached the State House, formally confirmed the news printed exclusively in the AMERICAN yesterday afternoon, that he as an interview with Senator Dennis E. Hailey and Representative John C. Sanborn, both of Lawrence, he declared he would absolutely be an independent candidate for Governor. The Governor found on his desk in the executive office today a stack of fifty or more letters, most of them from prominent Republican business men and Republican politicians, pledging their support if he should decide to run on an independent ticket.

In the letter pile also a number of Democratic and Progressive leaders declared their allegiance to the Governor.

"There are thousands of Republicans who will be with you," ex-Senator William A. Sye of Bernardale, who originated the Foss Republican boom on Cape Cod, told the Governor during a call today at the State House.

After confirming his interview with the Lawrence Senator and Representative the Governor said:

Ever since the opening of the campaign I have daily been receiving many letters from citizens of all parties in the State urging me to stand as a candidate for fourth term as Governor.

I am the only one of those mentioned for Governor who has any real issue upon which to base a legitimate claim for the office. My fight is against railroad monopoly, my position on the tariff, my fight to reorganize the prison system and the taxation laws of the State, and last but not least, my position on reciprocity, are well known to the people of the State. The great majority of the rank and file are with me, regardless of party.

Harvard Man Holds Up Kaiser's Museum

Professor Arnold Refuses to Relinquish His Lease.

Professor William R. Arnold of the Andover Divinity School of Harvard College, now in Norway, according to reports today, has been requested to meet Kaiser Wilhelm for an interview. The Kaiser is said to desire a talk with the professor because of the latter's action in holding up work on the Germanic Museum, the cornerstone of which has been laid on Kirkside place, Cambridge.

The professor has refused to relinquish rights in his five-year lease, which has yet three years and four months to run. The Germanic Museum is said to be a favorite project of the Kaiser's.

Kaiser Wilhelm himself offered to send huge carved doors from some of the oldest castles in Germany, gothic windows of remarkable beauty and a varied collection of German art treasures.

This Man Now Says He's "Charlie Ross"

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Charles Brewster Ross, the lost "Charlie Ross" whose mysterious disappearance a half century ago was the talk of a decade, has been found, if the tale of a Cleveland man proves true. Charles Ross (N. J.) newspaper last week received a letter asking for particulars of the kidnaping, and announcing that a man had represented himself to them as the famous Charlie Ross.

Boston Man Tries to Swim Channel

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 26.—A spectacular attempt to swim the English channel began almost simultaneously today when Henry Sullivan of Boston, Mass., accompanied by his father, left Dover for the French coast, while James Wolfe started from the French side. The weather was favorable and the swimmers hoped to pass in midchannel. Each was accompanied by a boat.

JESKA SWARTZ IN NEW ROLE WITH DAN CUPID

Jeska Swartz, the opera singer, and Julius Carol Morse, a well-known Boston merchant, will be married at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Swartz, in Albany, N. Y., on Labor Day. They will go on a brief honeymoon trip before the bride returns to Boston to take up her work at the Boston Opera House.

Miss Swartz, who is one of the best known of the younger mezzo sopranos in American opera, recently obtained a divorce from William Wilson, a Boston newspaper dramatic critic.

Miss Swartz has made some of her greatest successes in Boston opera and she says that marriage will not interfere with her musical career. Her husband has agreed to her continuing her career as a singer.

Mr. Morse is forty-five years old and clerk and a director of the Leopold Morse Company. He is also a director in the Leopold Morse Home. He became acquainted with Miss Swartz after she became a member of the Boston Opera, where she had charmed him with her singing.

SAM LANGFORD IS HEAVY FAVORITE OVER "PORKY" FLYNN

HESS LIKELY TO GO AFTER SECOND GAME

Today the Pilgrims and the Pirates engage in their second mixup and, unless all precedents of the season go to smash, the fun will fly for nine innings or so out at the South End grounds. No more interesting games have been played in Boston than the clashes between the Pilgrims and their present foes. The big crowd present yesterday gave evidence that the fans are aware of this fact. The attendance figures were exceptionally large for a Monday single game at this late time of the season. Everybody present got his or her money's worth, too. Today Hess or Rudolph will try to bring home another game, while either Adams or McQuillan, who pitched to two men in the hectic ninth yesterday, will fling for the Clarke players. Quinn and Schmidt, the two Montreal rookies recently signed, are booked to report today and may be given a chance to show their speed.

Devlin Wins Game; Finds He's Released.

The ups and downs of the baseball player's life were never better illustrated than in the case of Arthur Devlin, who yesterday was released to Rochester. In the game Bill Sweeney was banished for having over-argumentative, and Devlin became manager by right of succession. In the ninth he was confronted by about as difficult a situation as ever turned a leader's hair gray. He came through with flying colors and to do so, very boldly injected himself into the game as a pinch hitter. This required a lot of nerve, for a slump meant almost certain defeat. Yet the old Giant made the hit that tied the game. While he was doing all this, a telegram had been received at the club offices confirming his dismissal. The Hub fans will be very sorry to see him go, for no player on the Pilgrim team worked harder for victory than this same Arthur. In a pinch he was ever one of the best men on the team. He age has about ended his days of big league usefulness. However, judging from his work yesterday, he ought to make good as a manager of some big league aggregation, and the chances are that he will be signed up for such a job right quickly.

Pinch Hitters, Well Chosen, Turn Trick.

That ninth inning was, all in all, about the most nerve racking affair that has been staged in Boston this season. When the Pirates came in for their turn at bat, the game was, to all intents and purposes, sewed up very tightly. A couple of errors and some wretchedly slow infielding on the part of Myers, Smith and McDonald, and the Pirates had the lead. The only second base which Maranville went out to start the Pilgrim half of the session. There was some encouragement when Hap Myers slapped a single to centre. Then the cleverest and most effective shifting of players witnessed in these parts for some time started. As Robinson, a southpaw, was hurling, Brie Lord was chased out to pinch his for Connolly. Then he brought Dolan at third put the speedy Myers on third. While the Bucks were trying to catch Hap, Lord footed it to second. Then Devlin shot himself in to bat in place of McDonald and his humble pie since was the first baseman in with the tying run.

Zinn Keeps On Banging 'Em Out.

Guy Zinn continued to give notice that he has some hitting eye. In all, he made four hits and three of them were very vicious line drives of the clean-cut sort. His other hit was one of the Cardinal affairs, which tend greatly to make life merry for the scorers. This young outfielder is a natural hitter, with all the confidence in the world and, from what he has shown so far, is about the sweetest hitter that has worn a Pilgrim suit for many a season. In the field he is as graceful as at bat and has yet to be charged with an error. He failed to get one drive yesterday and some scorers marked it against him, but the hit in question looked like the cleanest kind of a safety to most observers. It was a vicious line smash which the outfielder, on the dead run, barely got his hands on and was a much more clear cut hit than many efforts that have gone down as safeties in local scoring society.

Boy with Megaphone Had Busy Session.

Then it was announced that Mann would bat for Griffiths. As soon as the boy had announced this interesting fact, he was given another statement to present, to wit, that McQuillan, a right hander, would pitch for Pittsburgh. An instant later and he told in clarion tones that Hess, not Mann, would bat. The big pitched walked. Then the graceful Mr. Zinn strolled to the plate and lined the first ball pitched out to the left and the game was over. It was a finish that called back to mind the close of that well known world's series last Fall.

Manager Bill Kicked and Was Banished.

Bill Sweeney lost his job as manager on a rather peculiar protest. In the second Dolan walked and stole. Whaling's throw was late and the runner's slide beat the ball into the base. Bill came rushing in to the plate, and, backed up by Whaling, loudly protested that Carey, at bat, had interfered with the Boston catcher's peg. Naturally one would expect Bill, out around second, to be watching the play at that base, but he evidently had sighted something funny around the home station. His long continued eloquence finally paled on the unsentimental Mr. Rigler and Captain William was chased from the field. McDonald, who subbed, showed need of much practice before he will ever be able to play the position satisfactorily.

Old Honus There Same as Ever.

Old Honus Wagner got a mighty fine hand when he made his first appearance at the plate. He didn't show any signs of old age, fielding as well as ever and getting one hit. He fanned once, much to the glee of the same rooters who had applauded his appearance, and was caught once trying to score from second on a single out Connolly's way. This, however, was due to the fact that he lost his footing rounding third. The old Dutchman still has a good many games left in his makeup.

Red Sox Release Recruit Byers

The Red Sox have released Pitcher William Byers of Minneapolis unconditionally. He is a left-hander and joined the team at Chicago. After watching him carefully in practice Manager Carrigan was satisfied he would not do and President McAleer turned him loose.

THE HISTORY OF A WHITE HOPE—NO. 3

This is the third of a series of pen sketches depicting the career of a "White Hope."

Copyright, 1913, International News Service.

AFTER THE FIGHT WITH THE BIG SMOKE "HI PIGGO" SMOKES MANAGER CAME INTO GEORGE (SLEDGE) SEIGER'S DRESSING ROOM AND TOLD HIM TO MEET HIM (HI) OUTSIDE FOR WHICH WE GOTTA GIVE M "CREDIT!
MEETING "SLEDGE" HE SAID, "THAT'S THE EASIEST HUNDRED IRON MEN YOU EVER MADE!" "SLEDGE" FELT OF HIS SWOLLEN FACE AND THOUGHT DIFFERENTLY. "COME INSIDE, PIE SEIGER. I WANT TO HAVE A TALK WITH YOU!"
THE MANAGER WAS VERY SMOOTH AND BEFORE MANY MINUTES HAD PASSED HE NOT ONLY MADE SLEDGE SEE THAT HE WASN'T ENTITLED TO THE HUNDRED DOLLARS BUT THAT SLEDGE OWED HIM (BIG) SOMETHING. BUT HE SAID HE WOULD CALL IT SQUARE IF SLEGE WOULD GO TO THE CITY WITH HIM
SO HE LEFT HOME AND HAPPINESS TO BECOME THE HOPE OF THE WHITE RACE.
"SLEDGE" GOT HIS NICKNAME FROM HAVING BROKEN A NEW SLEDGE HAMMER WHILE DRIVING WEDGES.

Langford and Flynn in Battle Tonight

Big Crowd Will See Heavyweight Bout at Arena; Tar Baby" Is Favorite.

By JACK CONWAY.

"GENTLEMEN: The main bout will be one of twelve rounds between Sam Langford of Weymouth, N. S., Cambridge, North Reading, Australia and other points in this corner, and Dan "Porky" Flynn of the dear old West End and Winthrop in that corner." While the assembled multitudes yell off some of their superfluous energy our old friend Benny Osthues will leave the ring this evening at the Atlas A. A. and the big bout will be on.

Sam and "Porky" will then settle which is the best man. After the battle is over, Lomasneyville will either be the most joyous spot in little old New England or else as gloomy as the home of a plunger after he has dropped his last case note by having his horse scratched.

The bout between Langford and Flynn is the biggest heavyweight contest staged in Boston since the "Tar Baby" clashed with Joe Jeanette at the old Armory A. A. in January, 1914. It has created an intense amount of interest among the stern old citizens of this fair village and also among the younger set who like to see a regular big league ring battle as well as their elders.

LANGFORD HEAVY FAVORITE.

LANGFORD naturally rules a top-heavy favorite. The "Tar Baby" is one of the greatest heavyweights developed in recent years, and there are thousands of fight fans who believe that he is capable of defeating Jack Johnson. The heavyweight champion has always feared Langford and has offered some kind of an excuse whenever a promoter tried to match him with Joe Woodman's terror.

Sam is the hardest hitting heavyweight in the world and is lasting faster than ever. He now weighs 186 pounds, which is sixteen pounds more than he has weighed at any time during his career in the ring.

Langford claims he will knock out Flynn tonight. He wants to demonstrate to the West End favorite that he is far from being a back number. It will be remembered that "Porky" asserted that Langford was all in when he returned from Australia a year ago after "breaking" with "Ho Ho" after a personal dispute.

Flynn will, of course, outweigh Langford by fully twenty pounds, while he is six inches taller than the Cambridge negro. These advantages will aid him a great deal.

If "Porky" depends upon a left-hand jab he may be able to hold Langford at bay for twelve rounds, like Sandy Ferguson did at the Armory A. A. several years ago.

But if Flynn attempts to swap punches with Langford or stalls he will probably be knocked out.

IMPORTANT BOUT FOR FLYNN.

THIS evening's bout means a great deal to Flynn. If he can get a draw with Langford, he will be the greatest fight "card" in the United States. "Porky" will also be a big attraction if he can stay twelve rounds with Langford. There is not any business in the country which is as profitable as that of a "white hope." Some of our white heavyweights earn more money in two fights than many a bank president receives in a year.

Many wagers have been made that Flynn will stay the limit. Some of the "fans" assert that Langford will not try and stop Flynn, as he may be desirous of obtaining a return contest staged in Boston since the "Tar Baby" clashed with Joe Jeanette at the old Armory A. A. in January, 1914. It has created an intense amount of interest among the stern old citizens of this fair village and also among the younger set who like to see a regular big league ring battle as well as their elders.

THREE PRELIMINARY BOUTS.

A STRONG preliminary card has been arranged by Matchmaker Johnny McLaun. The opening bout of the evening will be a six round affair between Joe Quinn of Cambridge and Teddy Murphy of the West End. Both boys are bantam weights and should put up a spirited bout.

The next contest will bring together Joe Chick of Fall River and Jimmy Krause of Philadelphia. This whirl is billed for eight rounds. The other bout is also scheduled for eight rounds. It will be between "Young" Jasper of this city and Andy Cortez of Brooklyn, and should be a red hot battle.

Golfers in Play for Press Title

The first round matches in two flights for the Press Club championship and minor trophies started today at the Belmont Springs Country Club of Belmont. The predominence of Frank H. Hoyt of Wollaston last year's champion, and present holder of the Charles H. Taylor trophy, shows that the old champion is more than likely to win the title over again.

His seventy-six yesterday was a bit of the best golf that has been played at the Belmont course this year. A. G. Lockwood was close to his heels, however, with a seventy-seven and between S. F. Thayer, H. W. Brown, H. N. Raymond and V. S. Lawrence, the old champion will have to play all the golf he knows to win.

The matches today follow:

FIRST DIVISION (CHARLES H. TAYLOR CUP.)

J. H. Hagins, 92, vs. E. M. Taft, 82.
A. J. Thurston, 86, vs. S. F. Thayer, 81.
H. N. Raymond, 85, vs. G. A. Young, 93.
R. W. Brown, 84, vs. V. S. Lawrence, 81.
J. C. Holwell, 77, vs. H. C. Lawrence, 96.
A. M. Cooley, 85, vs. F. H. Hoyt, 76.
G. A. Richmond, 87, vs. J. F. O'Connell, 92.
C. A. Simpson, 95, (winner of Pass vs. Thayer).

SECOND DIVISION (WITH HANDICAPS.)

E. F. Bigelow, 98, vs. J. R. Wotton, 94.
E. K. Bacon, 95, vs. G. F. Farrington, 92.
M. F. Dowd, 98, vs. J. F. Van Doren, 95.
H. H. Hunter, 98, vs. E. C. Emerson, 97.
(Loser of Pass vs. Hunter tie) vs. H. S. Underwood, 94.
C. H. Barry, 99, vs. H. W. Spoor, Jr., 91.
F. L. Brown, 85, 20, vs. H. W. Spoor, Jr., 11.

THE TUNNEL

The Greatest Story of Its Kind Since Jules Verne

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

OVER two hundred miles out under the sea, three thousand men are at work pushing a great tunnel out to meet it. A sudden, terrific explosion shakes the tunnel work and [illegible] Allan, [illegible] Rives, [illegible] Allan, [illegible] the one after a long [illegible] a tunnel train running [illegible] Allan finds Rives [illegible] dead. Allan and Rives [illegible] Allan [illegible] Rives [illegible] Allan [illegible] Rives [illegible] station No. 4.

A train is standing there, but just as the leaders of the survivors reach the steps of the rear car, the train [illegible] and leaves them screaming and cursing and rushing in the dark.

The story then goes back to the beginning of the great project. A score of financiers are gathered on the roof of the fifty-two-story Hotel Atlantic, called together by the genius of Hood, the master man of many trades. There, surrounded by Rives, M. Isodore Allan, the promoter, tells them of his great plan to tunnel the Atlantic. "My friends," he says, "is going to be 3,100 miles long."

The tunnel city is built on the Jersey coast, and work is pushed at top speed. Twenty thousand men, with great dredges, [illegible] down the [illegible] of the earth. Similar [illegible] are being enacted in Bermuda, Brest at Finisterre and on a great [illegible] beyond Le Conq. Allan is the moving spirit everywhere. He is almost never at his home in Tunnel City, and his wife tells Rives how deeply she is hurt. Mrs. Allan and Rives find their love one another and [illegible]. He blames himself, but [illegible] him it could not be helped.

When the news of the disaster in the tunnel reaches the surface the whole world goes crazy. Harrimond, Rives' friend of staff, is mobbed and flees for a life. He races in his auto and finds Mrs. Allan. Not supposing the mob is anywhere near her house, she goes out on the street. Allan returns to Tunnel City to find his wife and [illegible]. He finds a message [illegible] to the [illegible] and finds Rives, white haired and emaciated, transformed in appearance into an old man.

Investigation of the tunnel reveals [illegible] chamber created by the explosion. Its sides composed of a new mineral rich in radium

Now Go On With the Story

MORE than that the disaffection spread to the other tunnel cities and at the end of the first month after the explosion the tunnel work was [illegible] halted.

Then Allan seriously bestirred himself to seek out the leaders of the unions [illegible] conference with them in the [illegible] at the administration building.

"What do you men want?" he demanded.

Nobody seemed able to answer him to the point.

"We never had a strike before," he put on, half angrily. "What's the matter now? You know, and most of your men have sense enough to know, that we didn't try to kill their mates. They knew they are getting double and triple the pay of ordinary labor, because they do this very risk—and this is the first time the risk has become a reality. Take it time—and the work is nearly half finished."

No one said anything for a moment, and at last an American delegate leaned forward [illegible] his chair.

"I'll tell you what it is, Mac," he said [illegible] and [illegible] the chief, concluded [illegible] one chance in a million that anything like this can happen again. It was the one thing that we could not guard against and we never pretended that we could. We can tell when we are approaching known gasses and other known dangers. Your men know that we trapped a bigger gas pocket than this before we came up to Main Station 3, but no one even got a whiff of gas. Now what are the chances of there being two such pockets of unknown gas in the guts of the boring?"

The leaders looked at each other and at the floor and shrugged their shoulders.

"Well," snapped Allan, impatiently.

The American took up the reply again. "Our purpose [illegible] to [illegible] is [illegible] because, said it's different with [illegible] the men. You know it's [illegible] being caught down there under the ocean with no way out—that's what gets 'em."

"Is it?" retorted Allan, grimly. "Well, you tell them that they'll go to work in three days or clear out of here. See if that gets 'em."

SUPPOSITION

This silhouette did not have exactly the effect that Allan had hoped. The immediate result was a series of monster mass meetings on the great dumping plain by the sea where speakers addressed crowds of from fifty to a hundred thousand from a score of nations and in a score of tongues. They gave Allan an ovation. He cynically bribed half a dozen of the influential leaders and sent them out to make speeches also.

These last, it cited [illegible] the world as used with story—to earn their money. They pointed out the magnificent hospitals, where the injured were cared for free of charge while their pay went on just as if they were working their eight hours daily under the sea.

They bade the workmen consider their sanitary dwellings where they lived rent free and compare their lot with that of other workmen. They dwelt on the fact that up until this unforeseenable disaster few men had been killed in comparison with other industries where the work was supposed to be much safer.

And finally, "The Winter is coming on," they cried. "Here it is October and if we do not go back to work here, where will we work? Two hundred thousand men will be suddenly dumped upon the market to-day. We will have to take jobs away from other men at lower wages. We will get less pay and worse treatment. How many of you can earn $5 in eight hours anywhere else?"

For a time these arguments seemed to be making headway, but only for a short time. The opposing orators were silenced. Their slogan was that "mile and a half of coffins" that had come out of the tunnel. Their vocal chords, too, were strengthened with a golden tonic. The Shipping Trust, not daring to fight in the open, spared no money or effort to cripple the tunnel enterprise in the dark.

"They tell you that only five thousand men have been killed since the tunnel work began years ago," shouted one. "Yes, but what of the twenty-thousand that break down every year and are turned adrift in the streets or die in the poorhouses! No man can better stand this hellish work! It is better, my friends, to get less pay and live to a decent old age."

ALLAN SPEAKS

Allan himself was indefatigable. He worked with a feverish energy as if he felt that only by overworking his mind and body could he shut out the voice of Grief—the thought of the ashes of his wife and child in the New York vault and Rives in the hospital. And as he worked and fought slowly there came back to him the old belief in himself and in his mighty project. And one afternoon he went out to address the strikers himself.

For twenty four hours the event had been advertised and the great level plain was packed with thousands and thousands. Allan, mounted upon the seat of an auto-truck, spoke through a megaphone and his words were repeated by other speakers with megaphones so that all could hear.

When the big truck slowly pushed its way through to the platform Allan, on the seat with the driver, it was received in dead silence. He did not yet realize what the American who had spoken in the conference understood privately—that organized could not possibly be of any avail for the cars of the workmen were shut with terror—a deep, gripping horror of a death by fire and smoke back in the tunnels or the cold waters. But they heard him in silence.

When Cupid Says—"I Will Return"

By NELL BKINKLEY

Nell Brinkley Says:

BESIDE you stretches a flannelly bundle swathed like a small mummy. Only the face that ornaments the top of the bundle is not the black and gold, slant-eyed baffling face that gazes above the mummy case. Here is a pink face, the color of crumpled, pale, pink roses, crumpled a bit like them, too, you must admit, topped on its smooth head with a marvelous fine down of feathery hair.

It is your dear delight to caress with the palm of your hand that exquisite golden fuzz. You like to hang above it, too—brooding with dove's eyes and cooing with dove's voice. One slim hand bound about on its third finger with a golden ring rests and moves tenderly on the hard, shirted shoulder of the man who sometimes comes to kneel beside the bed—to put his big chin on his folded fist and gaze and smile and whistle soft at the tiny face of his baby girl.

Your face bended down—his tilted up—you study and yearn over and incessantly watch the atom between you. Sometimes, then, you raise your eyes to look deep and long into one another's. Sometimes, then, you kiss and your hand steals closer about the man's neck with the same curving, cherishing line it has when you slip it beneath your baby's head.

And while you brood and wonder there is One who tiptoes over from the door, looks breathlessly at the blue-eyed, blossom-mouthed thing between you and then draws back with a smile. Sometimes in the man's eyes dawns a look that signals he is aware in a dim fashion of the presence of that One. And he looks rather violent then—for a father has a fashion of getting ferocious over the idea that Love must come some dim day to his small baby girl.

Under the blue curtain at the door Love turns and grins.

"I will be back," he says, exulting, "in ANOTHER EIGHTEEN YEARS! She doesn't look like much material now. She has no hair to speak about, no teeth to smile with—no neck. Her cheeks fit right onto her little shoulders. She has no little intellect that she is intensely amused for long hours with her ten toes! She makes bubbles with her mouth all day long. And murmurs and holds forth to herself in a language no lover could understand. BUT WAIT! I know these little atoms AND I WILL BE BACK IN EIGHTEEN YEARS!"

An Englishman, fond of boasting of his ancestry, took a coin from his pocket and pointing to the head engraved on it, said:

"My great-great-grandfather was made a lord by the king whose picture you see on this shilling."

"What a coincidence!" said his Yankee companion, who at once produced another coin. "My great-great-grandfather was made an angel by the Indian whose picture you see on this cent."

A birthday gift was given to a wife by her husband and three children. The youngest, a little ten-year-old, was appointed to make the speech of presentation. She did it after much preparation for the occasion, and this was the form it took:

"Dear mamma, this gift is presented to you by your three children and your one husband."

The Cry of the Heart

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"LOVE, courtship and marriage are not passing sentiments or accidents. Romance and science must become fast friends. Sentiment and reality must meet. I want the young man and woman to know each other and to know each other sanely and well under the finest influence I know of—the church."

The Rev. John R. Gunn, who made this statement, is pastor of the North Baptist Church, No. 234 West Eleventh street, New York.

He has heard the Cry of the Heart. He has learned through his association with young people that in the civilization and salvation of this gray old world the heart must be reckoned with as well as the soul, the body and the brain.

It is not enough to throw open the church doors to save souls. The work does not end with establishing schools to train the fingers and brain. The public clinics that teach the care of the body accomplish wonderful results, but this and all these are not enough.

The man with perfect lungs and liver, skilled hands, a well trained brain and a soul that he believes is saved is of no more account than a collection of dry bones if his heart has a longing that neither mental or physical tiring can still. He wants to love and to be loved. He wants the greatest gift life holds, and the same longing is implanted in the breast of every woman.

WHO CARES?

In a small town where every one knows every one else meeting and mating are easy. A man sees a girl he admires and the next day a mutual friend introduces them. In a large city he may see The girl every day for an eternity, and the rules which were made for her protection prevent him from speaking without an introduction, and there is no one in the world who knows him and her or who cares.

The girl a nice man wants for a wife is not the girl who lets a street corner stand sponsor for him. The girl who will let a wink or a smile serve as an introduction is not the girl he wants to marry. He wants to meet and marry the nice, modest kind of a girl he knew "back home," and he knows, as everyone knows, that the city is full of them. He also knows that his chances for meeting her are not any better than if she were stranded on an island in the North Sea and he were a nomad in the Sahara Desert.

Love is too priceless to be lost through formality and too precious to be risked through its lack. The altruists must in time recognize this, and open social centres where decent young men may meet decent young women in a sane, decent way. On this the happiness of the world depends.

THEIR CRIES

"I am a young girl nineteen years of age," writes one who signs herself "Anxious," "and have no chance whatever to get acquainted with young men. While I have girl friends, they are selfish and would not introduce me to any young man. Anyhow, they are the kind of men they meet in public dance halls and I don't care to know them. Will you tell me of a way to meet a few nice men?"

"I am in love with a young girl," writes another, "who is working near the place I work. She is looking at me all day long with a great deal of interest but she never says anything because we have not been introduced. I try to make her understand with my eyes that I love her, but she keeps silent, just looking at me all the time. Is there a way I can meet her and get acquainted?"

"I am eighteen"—this time it is a girl—"and every day meet a nice young man who says 'How do you do?' and passes on. I like him very much, but have never been introduced to him. Tell me how I may know him."

"I am a young man of nineteen and am very, very bashful. When with young ladies I do not know what to converse about. Lately I have been corresponding with a medical institution that offered to permanently cure me of my bashfulness in twelve lessons, but I have an idea I could be cured quicker if I could meet more girls and be with them oftener. But I live in a large city and never meet any girls and am in despair."

ONE WAY

It is the cry of the Heart for love, and the cry is universal. The man or woman who fails to heed it or who stills it pays the penalty all through life. Only through satisfying this hunger for love may happiness be secured.

The Rev. Gunn, recognizing this demand, has opened a parlor in his church for the purpose of making it possible for well intentioned young men and women to meet. He will act as the intermediary of Cupid, and the poor little god of Love needs more intermediaries these days than at any previous time in his troubled existence.

Let others who claim they want to do good emulate the Rev. Gunn. Satisfy that longing for love first of all, and ambition, achievement, and all that counts in the progress of humanity will follow.

What Did He Mean?

Last year, when the time for his annual holiday came, Mr. Hounsell retired with his wife and family to a little farmhouse, where quiet and rest seemed likely to be assured.

Close by, however, was a pig-sty, a very piggy sty, the presence of which was indicated unmistakably under certain wind conditions. When planning, therefore, to revisit the farm again this year, Mr. Hounsell wrote to the landlord, saying that he could take the place once more, but only on condition that the piggery was first attended to.

The farmer's reply was concise and to the point:

"Can accommodate you easily. There have been no pigs on the place since you left!"

The Mistakes of Jennie

Asking if he might not help her home.

CHAPTER 26.

TOM finally prevailed on Jennie's mother to accept the little money he had saved up and take Jennie with her and go down to the beach somewhere and have a good rest and fresh air.

Tom told Jennie to try and "stick it out" at the place where she was working until the end of the week, when she got paid, as he was afraid the man she was working for would not pay her at all if she told him shewas leaving at once. This Jennie did, and Saturday, when she got her five dollars, she didn't say a word to the man about leaving, for she was fearful of another "scene" like the one they had before.

Jennie and Tom went down to a little, inexpensive place at the beach to try to find a house for Jennie and her mother to live in, which they finally succeeded in doing. It was a cheap, cozy little place, that made Tom exclaim: "Jennie, girl, I wish this was OUR house and we were married and were just coming to spend our honeymoon." But Jennie evaded the subject and talked of other things.

After they got Jennie's mother moved down, which they did with a great deal of trouble, as Jennie's mother was very sick, Tom went back to town and work, saying he would be down whenever he could.

That night Jennie went down to the small store to get some groceries and, coming back, dropped one of the packages, which a very handsome young man in yachting suit picked up for her, asking if he might not help her home with his bundles.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WIFE sed Pa to Ma last nite, you have joined so many wimmen's clubs that I have got the feever now & I have joined a club too. I have joined the Globe Trotters.

You don't say as much, sed Ma. & wen did you discover that you was a jolly rover?

Oh, I have traveled far & wide enuff to beelong to that club, sed Pa. I know this country like a book.

But globe trotters meens men that has been all over, Ma sed. It meens men that has been in South America & Asia & Africa & Europe & all the strange, far places of the world.

Well, sed Pa, I always reemember my fogrophy prifty well & I guess I can walk as good a bluff as any of them.

I am afraide not, sed Ma. I never seen one of these atlas travelers yet that dident git tripped up at sum time or other. Hrewever, I hope you will have sum good times, & as long as you dont talk it into your head to run away to Europe with the restless gang you have joined, I won't say a word.

That is fine of you, sed Pa, & by the way, sed Pa, I want you & little Bobbie to listen to the ending of a long speech wich I am going to make at our first bankwet of the Globe Trotters.

As long as it is only the ending of the speech, Ma sed, we will both listen but please dont start the ending to-nite for the model. I am very tired bodie & so is our littel son. Go ahead.

So Pa red:

And so, as we are gathered here tonite, travelers all, roumers forever, there is no peace for us in remaining stagnant. The littel hamlet, the large city, the wild plains, no one of these places appeals long to the gypsy blood in us. As sons of Romany we roam, and shall roam. Whether we are gazing upon the highest peaks of the Cordileras, or the awful gulfs of the Himmalayas, whether we roam the pampas or skim the seething South Sea, whether we see at nite the stars of Arbeon or the sun that glides the domes of Pekin, whether we are parched with thirst on the Sahara or cold and shivering along the banks of Russia's deadly Berezina, we shall remember this nite wen for once we are banded together with the band of brotherly luv.

No city has known us long. Strange era we cum and strangers we go. Like the meteor that fleshes earthward from the empyreun, like the strange, ghastly iceberg that glides out of the frozen North, like the Westering sun that dips behind the Pacific, we are and then we are not. As elusive as a sunbeam, as fluttering as a twilight shadow, we flit through life and thus we live and love.

Well, well, sed Ma, you are a bunch of shifty guys, aren't you? I dount see what time you have to love or live wen you are scooting around from piller to post. Anybody would think there was a sheriff after every one of you.

But how do you like the speech? sed Pa.

It is splendid, sed Ma. You have rote it just as if you was a reel globe trotter, but I want you to save one thing in mind, dearest luv. Wen the wanderfeeling come caver you, think of a wife & child wich is going to be adjacent to you wen you start for the far places of the erth. Bobbie & I can globe trot fast enuff to keep up with you, old boy, sed Ma.

I know it, sed Pa. I wud have to be a champeen trotter to lose you.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

G. H.: Your friend was right when she said you can dissolve the fatty tissues and thus regain your symmetrical figure if you use simple parcutis for a while. To prepare, dissolve 4 ounces parcutis in 4½ pints hot water and when it cools take a tablespoonful before each meal. You will require no dieting or rigid exercising and while parcutis quickly removes the burden-some fat, it in no way distorts the figure. When your weight is where you want it, you can safely discontinue the treatment and your skin and flesh will be smooth and firm.

Mrs. A.: It is foolish to countenance that fuzzy growth on your chin. Get a small, original package of delatone and with a little water mix enough of the powder to make a thick paste, then spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes, rub off, wash the skin and it will be free from hair or blemish. Be careful it is delatone you use.

Anna: As I have before said, an excessively oily scalp or one covered with dandruff, indicates a diseased condition which eventually causes the hair to lose its life and lustre and then fall out. The recipe for any quinsoin hair tonic I am giving you will correct these faults and keep the scalp healthy so that a luxurious growth of soft, fluffy hair naturally follows. Into ½ pint alcohol pour 1 ounce quinsoin, then add ½ pint water. Use this tonic frequently and you will not be bothered with dandruff or excess oil and the color of your hair will be rich and even.

Hope: You are quite right, powder does not protect the skin. It smothers the small pores and causes many complexion troubles. I have found the very best thing to use is a home made spurmax lotion prepared as follows: In ½ pint witch hazel or hot water, dissolve 4 ounces spurmax, then add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. I apply sparingly after washing and drying the skin and am always delighted with the rose tint and velvety smoothness my complexion assumes. This spurmax lotion is ideal for hot, windy days, because it really protects the skin and assists nature in its beautifying process.

Florence: Your hair will regain its rich lustre and soft fluff if cleansed occasionally with a mild shampoo. The best thing I know of for this purpose is plain cantharox, a teaspoonful of which dissolved in a cup wet water is sufficient for the thickest growth of hair. Cantharox creates a wonderful amount of white, thick lather that cleanses and invigorates and insures a healthy condition. Dry, itchy or grossy oily scalps are soon put in a healthy condition by shampooing frequently with cantharox and dull, "stringy," brittle hair grows bright and even in color and will be ever so soft and fluffy.

Laura: I think your eyes will be both cured and beautified by a cryatos eye-tonic, made by dissolving 1 ounce cryatos in a glnf cold, clear water; then, put 2 or 3 drops in each eye occasionally for a few days. This will relieve the smart and ache and is very restful to tired eye muscles. The cryatos eye-tonic is absolutely harmless and should be kept ready to use when you get any foreign particle in the eye.

Christine: Your sallow, yellow skin indicates a torpid liver and if I were you I should make up and use the old-time kardene blood builder and liver tonic. This is prepared by pouring 1 ounce kardene into ½ pint alcohol, do not use whiskery and then adding ½ cupful sugar and hot water to make a quart. Take a tablespoonful before meals and your skin will soon be clear and beautiful. The kardene tonic is good for all skin troubles, because it eliminates from the system the poisons causing them, and its timely use frequently prevents serious sickness.

Cora: I cannot say what caused the wrinkles and lines in your skin—probably extreme dryness. Here is a preparation which I make up for myself, which quickly removes the wrinkles and restores the softness and natural tone to the skin. Get an ounce of almosnin at the drug store and dissolve it in ½ pint cold water, adding two teaspoons glycerine. Apply before retiring and leave over night. This will remove wrinkles, prevent crow's feet and make your face soft and satiny. It clears and whitens the skin, too, and you feel and see the effect immediately.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were weaker at the start today because President Wilson's message on the Mexican situation was due, and they rallied some after it became known that he would postpone reading it.

The feature in the Boston market was the further decline of New Haven. It made a new low record yesterday, but that figure was high compared with the one it reached this morning. It descended to 92½. At the end of the first hour it had recovered to 93⅞ and was then off 2%. Boston & Maine was a point lower. Calumet & Hecla had declined 15. Most coppers sold off, although London copper warrant prices were much higher. Quincy was an exception. It gained a point.

Early N. Y. Tone Was Heavy.

There was a heavy tone in the New York market at the opening. This was attributed to anxiety as to what President Wilson would say in his message to Congress concerning this country's relations with Mexico. Prices ranged lower. Canadian Pacific declined 3, and New Haven to a new low record. Persistent selling of the latter by some important interest is reported.

After half an hour, however, a better tone prevailed and some issues made partial recoveries.

Amalgamated began good, then shaded off fractionally. Southern Pacific commenced with a gain of ⅜, but soon lost it. After opening unchanged Lehigh Valley declined. American Can, American Smelting, Northern Pacific and Erie each lost ¼. American Locomotive gained ¾. Reading, unchanged, at 161⅛, then shaded.

The Curb was heavy.

Dealing in Americans in London were of a professional character and stocks were irregular and lower. Interest in Canadian Pacific eased off in this market on account of the character of the weekly earnings report.

Little Heed to Bankers' Wishes.

Latest reports from Washington indicate that President Wilson and his party will give little heed to the wishes of bankers who were consulted in Chicago as to what they would recommend in the way of currency legislation. The President is said to be against any material concessions and a test vote in the House caucus of Democrats showed he is in control of the party policy. He is said to have threatened to veto any bill providing for a central bank which would control the issue of currency or certainly any of the salient recommendations thus far made by the bankers. He regards proposals of the bankers as unacceptable to the platform pledge to insure equal treatment by banks to all interests. After the caucus vanquished the President's views, bankers had no chance of obtaining any concessions of consequence in the Glass-Owen bill as far as the House is concerned. They will have to make their fight in the Senate.

McAdoo Made No Pledges.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo denies he made any pledge to President George B. Reynolds of the Continental & Commercial Bank of Chicago that the administration would do all it could to remedy defects in the currency bill of which bankers complain.

"Any statement," said Secretary McAdoo, "that I have made any promise of any sort to bankers or anyone else with respect to currency legislation is unfounded."

There is considerable discussion in Washington as to whether the Chicago conference represented the majority of bankers in this country, especially those in small communities, and one dispatch from the Capital states that high administration officials think the object of those who gathered at Chicago was to intimidate less important ones into opposition to the currency bill. The administration believes that the bankers have gone far campaigning against the measure and Secretary McAdoo not long since accused them of trying to depreciate government bonds as a means of defeating it.

The administration believes that the big bankers are antagonistic to the vital principles of the Glass-Owen bill and the President, it is understood, is determined to do all he can to get it enacted, despite their opposition. Considering what they are against, he does not count on or feel the need of any support from them.

Radicals Beaten in Caucus.

Voting in caucus yesterday showed that the administration is in control and that radicals are in a hopeless minority. Representative Henry's fight for agricultural currency is over. The caucus was a dissenting vote to the compromise provision written into the currency bill, and Henry says he is satisfied and claims a victory. "The Glass amendment," he said, "comes practically to the new department I have advocated for months."

The discount section as thus amended, replied Chairman Glass, does not comprehend a single one of the wild and absurd suggestions which had been proposed. Mr. Henry says he is satisfied and simply because he was beaten. He jumped rather the boat into the wharf.

"We have won it; we contended for," was the comment of Representative Neeley of Kansas, in charge of the opposition to the bill.

With both sides claiming to be satisfied, it looks as if opposition to the measure is about over in the House. It is as unsatisfactory as it stands to bankers who were represented by the Chicago conference as it ever has been.

A Baron Hepburn, chairman of the Currency Commission of the American Bankers' Association, talked in a hopeful strain, however.

"I am well pleased," he said, "with the results of the conference. I think it will prove fruitful and that Congress will respect the views of a body of men assembled from all parts of the country and representing force, earnestness and ability."

The New Haven Road's Deficit.

For the year ended with June the New Haven road reports a deficit upon operations of $4,630,000, which is $3,701,011 more than that for the previous twelve months. If the deficit was the largest ever reported so was the gross. The latter amounted to $88,613,502. One statement about the deficit is that it was due to the distribution of $13,552,237 in dividends when only $8,922,237 was available for that purpose.

Regarding selling of New Haven stock, it was said in New York this morning, "This selling has not been especially heavy, but it has gone on without a break for weeks, so that the price touched a new low record for all time. Obviously this would suggest liquidation of some large holdings."

Financial News in Brief.

The London copper warrants market opened firm, with both spot and futures up 10s.

Ray Consolidated Copper Company's July last output was 4,007,000 pounds compared with 4,392,412 in June and 3,100,165 in July, 1912.

The Bank of Germany reports a gain in gold for the week of 20,746,000 marks. Cash in hand increased 31,000,000.

Orders now being placed by the United States Steel Corporation are from 30 to 35 per cent more than they were coming in three months ago. The increase within a month in the buying of steel products has been 72 per cent. Reduced prices have brought business.

The Canadian Pacific has announced in its annual pamphlet report that its income for the year available for dividends was 19.36, per cent., compared with 17.96 per cent. for the previous one.

REP. WILLIAM J. SULLIVAN OF SOUTH BOSTON

This Democratic member of the Legislature is a man who was weighed in the balances and not found wanting. When the Western Trolley Merger Bill was presented to the Legislature with the veto of the Governor Mr. Sullivan did not hesitate to vote against the bill. This bill was opposed by the Railroad Commission, the Tax Commissioner, the Public Franchise League, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Boston Real Estate Exchange and the Interstate Commerce Commission. It was supported by no disinterested man in the State or country.

The New Haven Railroad lobby demanded five million dollars under the Western Trolley Merger Bill, claiming that it needed it to supply Western Massachusetts with trolleys.

The Governor said about this demand: "IF EXPENDED FOR MANAGEMENT, UNDER IMPROVIDENT AND WASTEFUL CONTRACTS SUCH AS HAVE BEEN RECENTLY EXEMPLIFIED IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE HAMPDEN COUNTY RAILROAD, THE FIVE MILLION DOLLARS PROVIDED IN THIS BILL WILL BUILD CONSIDERABLY LESS THAN ONE HUNDRED MILES OF TROLLEY LINES," and Mr. Sullivan stood firmly against any such looting of the State for the benefit of a lawless monopoly.

If the forty-five Democrats who bargained away party principles for their own personal advantage had followed Mr. Sullivan's example they would not be the pitiful weight upon their party which they now are.

Boston Brokers Fight Grape Rates

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Strong protest has been received by Representative James M. Curley from Custom House brokers in Boston against the provision of the Underwood tariff bill by which grapes will be assessed 25 cents per cubic foot, with a further assessment of fifteen percent ad valorem on imported grapes. A fee of $1 to certify the American manufacturer of the barrels, the brokers claim, will work still further hardship.

Sentence Girl's Slayer to Hang

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 26.—Judge Roan today sentenced Lee M. Frank, convicted of the murder of little Mary Phagan, to be hanged October 10. Frank received his sentence stoically. Luther Rosser, attorney for the defendant, moved for a new trial. He declared if the motion is denied he will carry the case to the Supreme Court of Georgia.

Hold Dedham Man for Father's Death

Charged with assault with intent to murder his sixty-eight-year-old father, Richard J. Delaney, aged thirty-three, of No. 62 Highland street, Dedham, was held without bail pending an autopsy upon the father's body when arraigned before Judge Grover in the Dedham Court today. The hearing was set for September 4.

Hulse and Fuller Are Safe in Mexico

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Shirley C. Hulse and W. B. Fuller, Americans reported to have been in danger of their lives at La Boquilla, Mexico, were reported safe today in unofficial dispatches received at the State department from Consul Letcher at Chihuahua.

Shaw Takes Header Off His Motorcycle

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The unique George Bernard Shaw confesses today he has taken up autocycling. He also admits he has had several accidents. Once, while delivering a play to a client, a stone caught in the front wheel, and he was shot over the handle bars into a hedge.

Police Seek Trace of Missing Woman

Early today the police of Boston and vicinity were asked to search for Mrs. Alice Tirano, aged thirty-five of No. 359 West Third street, South Boston, who disappeared Saturday morning. She is of dark complexion and wore a black skirt and a black waist and no hat.

Revere Man Killed Cleaning Revolver

The authorities today, following an investigation, believe the death of Anthony Cirillo, twenty-two, of No. 55 Elmwood street, Revere, was accidental. Cirillo was cleaning a revolver when a cartridge exploded. The bullet passed through the man's heart.

Record Cattle Receipts.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 26.—The greatest single day's receipts in the history of the local stockyards has been recorded in the consignment of 38,000 cattle. Poor passenger and a scarcity of water are the causes.

Score of Governors Already at Meeting

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Aug. 26.—Governors of more than a score of States were on hand at the opening session of the annual conference of Governors today. The chief executives of nearly every State were expected tomorrow when the conference will settle down to business.

Child 11 Months Old, Has Appendix Cut

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Robert Zarrino, eleven months old, is doing so nicely today, following his operation for appendicitis, that the physicians say he will recover. He is the youngest person ever under such an operation.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

When it gets around to automobile show time for the 1914 models, there ought to be quite a number of the so-called "cycle-cars" on exhibition. There is hardly a day passes in the Middle West but that some company is not incorporated to build a car of this type.

One of the latest companies to announce that it will build cycle-cars is the Connecticut Electric Manufacturing Company, Bridgeport. This company will build a four-cylinder, light model, of eight-inch wheelbase and forty-inch tread, selling for $390 with all equipments.

* * *

Salesmanager Blanchard, of the Lenox Motor Car Company of this city, announces that he has delivered a four-cylinder touring car to the Park and Recreation Department of the City of Boston.

* * *

B. F. Everitt, of Everitt-Metzger-Flanders fame, is to bring out a new car designed by himself. It will be a medium size four-cylinder model.

* * *

C. A. Forster, who has been acting as commercial manager of the Maxwell Motor Company, has resigned. It is understood that he will return to the Burrough's Adding Machine Company.

Roosevelt Blames Tango on Indians

Asserts Women Fools Were Created Along with Men Fools.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The poor Indians have got something else to shoulder now. Colonel Roosevelt says the Hopis invented and danced the tango, turkey trot, bear cat, grizzly and a horde of similar dances censurius before Newport or Narragansett Pier got the craze.

He also told members of the Chicago Progressive Club, on his way back from the scenic vacation among the cowboys in Arizona, that God made woman fools to match men and woman's duty as a voter is not to interfere in politics or domestic duties. He insisted there would be no compromise with the Republican party.

Press Humorists' Convention Opens

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 26.—The annual convention of the American Press humorists was opened here today by President Edgar Guest of Detroit. Serious matters of business were not introduced at the first session, and most of the discussion was on the entertainment offered them yesterday by George Fitch and W. Kee Maxwell, resident humorists who were hosts at the baseball game in Lakeview Park and a smoker at the Jefferson Hotel.

Shoe Worker Is Held for Stabbing

John Gard was today held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury in the South Boston District Court, charged with assault with attempt to kill Timothy J. Daly. Gard is alleged to have stabbed Daly five times with a shoe knife in K street, South Boston, last February, following an altercation in a shoe factory where both men were employed.

'Bride' Flees Before Hour of Wedding

Man May Sue Franklin, N. H., Girl for Ring.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Aug. 26.—Christie Fifield, who had been married once and divorced, decided she preferred taking a train to taking a husband. So she left for an unknown destination a few hours before the time set for her marriage to H. J. Pickering, a local lunch cart proprietor.

Pickering says he will take legal steps to recover a $60 diamond ring he claims he bought for her. His bride-to-be a few weeks ago jumped into the Pemigewasset river.

Miles Home, Declines to Comment on War

General Says He May Talk on the Balkans Later.

NORTHAMPTON, Aug. 26.—Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles returned from the Balkans on the Minnetonka, which docked at New York yesterday, and came at once to his home here. His daughter was with him.

General Miles was in the Balkans during the hostilities there, but declined to comment on the war. He said:

"I am neutral. Perhaps after I have rested up at my home here I shall have something to say. But not now! Not now!"

Two French Army Aviators Killed

Officers Drop 150 Feet to Death While at Practice.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Two members of the aviation corps of the French army, Lieutenant Senaeur and Sergeant La Fargue, were killed at the military aerodrome at Villacoublay today. Their machine dropped from a height of 150 feet while practice stops were being made.

The deaths of the lieutenant and sergeant bring the total of known aviation fatalities to 314.

London Militants Set $20,000 Fire

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Disregarding the plea of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, now in France, for a recess in the campaign of violence waged by the Women's Social and Political Union, militant suffragettes continued their depredations today. They burned a $20,000 mansion here, leaving placards about the ruins.

Can a Man Educate Himself in Two Hours a Day?

What Should He Read? Important Questions for Every Man

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company

Young boys don't WANT education. We force it upon them.

Men past thirty long for education and little effort is made to teach them.

A reader writes:

"Dear Sir: I am a constant reader of your valuable and instructive editorials and have gained considerable knowledge from them; but I beg of you a small favor which I hope you won't refuse, and that is, how can a man with about two hours a day to spare become intelligent and educated? What course should he pursue in the shape of books, etc., etc.? Please name books and also advise, which I would appreciate very much.

"Thanking you in advance, and I hope and trust to be favored with a reply. I remain,

"Sincerely yours, J. H."

The man full grown longs for knowledge, as the boy longs for exercise and excitement.

A committee of the most learned and conscientious men in the country might well devote six months of careful thought to the answering of such a letter.

Can a man get an education if he has two hours a day at his disposal for reading?

Yes, he can, provided when the time for reading comes he has left in his body knowledge and power that will supply THE THOUGHT, without which reading is wasted.

A man must THINK his way through a book, and thinking must digest reading.

He may have mere TIME in which to read, but it is time and ambition pitifully wasted if he has not also the vitality and energy to give to the mental work.

Man is capable of a limited amount of effort in any direction. If he uses all his force in his regular day's work he can have little left for mental work when the time for reading comes.

The curse of the world is a system that takes out of men's bodies in physical labor all the power that they have, and leaves nothing for the mental labor which should inspire the individual and improve the race.

The great gift which organized labor, limiting working hours, can bestow upon the people is STRENGTH RESERVED FOR THOUGHT WHEN THE WORK IS DONE.

Merely to name a list of books, however valuable they may be, is silly and heartless, when you know that the average very good book is written in a style which makes absorption of knowledge difficult for the untrained mind, when you know that the words used by the man of education are not the words of the uneducated man, and make his reading difficult.

Good books, with few exceptions, cannot be comfortably and intelligently read, unless a man begins reading with a good supply of information or possesses the patience and industry to look up in reference books, one after another, the historical names and scientific terms that flow so glibly from the pen of the educated man.

This world needs an EDUCATION in ten volumes, or fewer, for the man past thirty. Such a series of books should present accumulated knowledge simply, and in words that everybody could understand, identifying each historical personage appearing in its pages, making the reading of history and science as easy as the reading of trash.

This could be done, and this newspaper hopes one day to do it and have the satisfaction of distributing millions of copies of such an "Education for the Man of Thirty and Older."

A man who wants an education should first make up his mind what education is. Having determined what it is THAT HE WANTS TO KNOW, let him, with the help of the public librarians, always kind and encouraging, get books containing the knowledge that he wants, and written as nearly as possible in a style that he can understand.

Man is like a tiny insect, fastened by power of gravitation to this whirling earth twenty-five thousand miles in circumference, flying through space at terrific speed, going around the sun as it flies, and going forward in a mysterious spiral journey with the sun.

Man should know first of all HIS PLACE IN THIS UNIVERSE; he should know something of astronomy. He should have in his mind a conception of himself as a tiny, thinking creature on a great planet eight thousand miles in diameter, heated by a sun one million times as big as this earth, and that sun flying through space in company with other suns a millions times as big as itself.

The first study for the man of intelligence, industry and ambition is ASTRONOMY.

Unfortunately, the man who wants knowledge is frightened by a complicated presentation of that which is really simple.

However, ask the public librarian to recommend to you a simply written book on astronomy, and he will do his best.

When a man knows something about this universe, the part that he and his little planet play in it, he should know how this planet has developed through millions of years since it cooled off and since, in the words of Spencer, "Indefinite incoherent homogeneity was changed to definite coherent heterogeneity."

A man should know something of geology, which means the history of the earth. Again the public librarian will direct you.

A man should know something about the development of life on this planet, commonly called evolution, the different forms of life as they appeared, including the great monsters of the age when the coal was forming, and all the mysterious story of life on the planet.

Then man should know the history of man himself, from the earliest days, when a sharp stone was the only tool, to these days of the rolling mill and the 40,000-horsepower steamer.

The history of man as a race should be studied. Unfortunately it is made needlessly complicated. All that a man NEEDS to know

One Woman's Story

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER XX.

MARY DANFORTH thrust the letter she had received into her bag and climbed the stairs to her apartment. She clung to the banisters, for she felt weak and giddy. Softly she let herself into her own front door, but not so softly that her mother did not hear her and come out into the hall to greet her. The daughter forestalled any question by saying, as soon as she had kissed the elderly woman:

"Mother, dear, I am tired. If I do not stop to talk with you now I will have a quarter-of-an-hour in which to rest before supper. So I will go right to my room and lie down. I will see you later, dear."

Without waiting for a reply the girl hurried on to her own room. Here she locked her door noiselessly that her mother might not hear the click of the bolt and suspect that something was wrong. She wanted to be alone to read her letter slowly and carefully. She had read it rapidly down stairs, after taking it from the vestibule letter box.

Gordon Craig wished to inform her of his engagement to a girl in San Antonio, a girl he had met six months ago. He had not forgotten the promise he and Mary had given each other that "if they continued to care for each other" until he had "made good," they would become formally engaged. But neither had he forgotten that other promise that they were not to consider themselves bound if any other love came into the life of either. The "understanding"—that is what he called it—had been, after all, but "a boy and girl affair," yet they had been such good friends that he wanted her to know of his new-found happiness. If he thought for a moment that she would be hurt by his action in this matter, he would be very sorry, but he was sure that she, like himself, had outgrown what was, after all, but a passing fancy. She must have noticed the change in his letters and that, for months, they had been those of a friend, that he had taken it for granted that now that each had seen more of life, and had been absent from the other long enough to shake off a youthful infatuation, friendship, and friendship only, existed on either side.

The change in his letters! Mary almost laughed aloud at the irony of the situation as she remembered the construction she had put upon his silence. She had been so sure of him, so certain that he was silent on the topic of their love only because he was planning to surprise her with the news that he would soon be able to claim her. She despised herself when she remembered her thoughts, her musings—how she had whispered to herself each night—"He will write the truth to me soon," how her heart had beaten high at the hope, and how, only this afternoon, she had said to herself that her practice as stenographer and typewriter might make her of assistance to him after they were married. She had even thought that if she could help him in this way it might spare him the expense of a private stenographer later on, when his business had grown large, and that would help pay for her mother's board and lodging in their home. Not that Gordon would think of that, she had mused, he was so good, so generous! Oh, what a blind fool she had been! What a blind fool!"

Sinking into a chair she buried her face in her hands. The window in her tiny room was open and the people in the apartment across the narrow court were talking. What harsh voices some women had! Then she remembered what disagreeable intonations Elizabeth Preston had and how patronizing she had been. What was it that she, Mary Danforth, had admitted to Elizabeth only a few minutes ago? Oh, yes, that she was going to give up her work, that she was, perhaps, going to be married! She started to her feet and wrung her hands. Wounded love, aching heart shattered hopes, all were overwhelmed in this supreme moment by tortured pride.

Her mother knocked at the locked door, tried the knob, said, "Oh, please excuse me!" and went back down the hall to the kitchen. Mary knew from the tones of the elderly woman's voice that she was hurt or offended at finding her daughter's door closed against her. This knowledge added a sense of annoyance and almost of guilt to the wretched girl's misery. From her childhood it had worried her to know that she had displeased her mother. The elderly woman must be pacified. The daughter must summon all her strength to face the catastrophe that had befallen her, and yet to spare the parent whom she loved.

Mary Danforth thrust Craig's letter into her desk, and, as she did so, her eyes fell upon a postscript on the back of the sheet. The words stood out clear, yet the fingers that penned them must have been a bit unsteady, for the chirography wavered somewhat. Perhaps the writer's heart had failed him for a moment. The girl read: "Send me a line, please, when you can. I want to be assured that you understand the situation. I would not hurt you for worlds."

Mary uttered an exclamation, half sob, half laugh. Her hand shook with anger as she held the letter to the gas flame and watched it burn, putting her foot upon the charred fragments as they fell to the floor.

"I will write to him!" she muttered. "But not until I have some news of my own to tell him!"

She remembered that she had not taken off her hat, and started to draw out her hat pins, then paused, a sudden look of almost savage triumph flashed across her face. She unlocked her door and hurried down the hall into the kitchen, where her mother stood awaiting her.

OLD BOOTS

By E. H. WOLFF

GOOD-BYE, old friends, at last we've got to part,
I hate to have you go, but Wifey says it;
You've had three soles, and now the rubbish cart
Must see your end—unless a tramp waylays it.

What lots of cheerful miles we've jogged together,
Sand, dust or mud, your old sides never leak;
And though you don't look smart, I'd back your leather
For comfort, against any patent freak.

If only women would not interfere—
Oh, hang it! I suppose it's no use wishing;
Some shirts will hide you in my chiffonier;
You're still QUITE good enough for going fishing!

Mysteries of Science and Nature

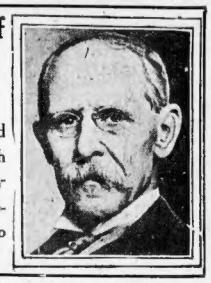
Ultra-Violet Rays Would Destroy Life on Earth Did They Not, Themselves, Form a Protecting Obstruction to Passage



By GARRETT P. SERVISS

ONE of the most astonishing announcements recently made in the name of science is that a means may be discovered, with the aid of the ultra-violet rays from the sun, to free man from the necessity of continually cultivating the soil in order to furnish himself with food.

If this expectation should be fully carried out mankind would no longer be forced, as they have been ever since the loss of Adam's paradise, to earn their bread in the sweat of their brows. That necessity has hitherto rested upon man because the plants of the fields possess a kind of secret laboratory in which they utilize the power of the sunbeams for transforming mineral substances into foodstuff.

But now the French chemists, Berthelot and Gaudechon, have found out a way, with the aid of the ultra-violet rays, to imitate, to a certain extent, the action of the plants. Their experiments give rise to the hope that, after a while, we shall be able to make in the laboratories, out of nitrogen, chalk, carbonic acid and water, a number of alimentary, or eatable, substances, like those which heretofore have been furnished only by plants.

Believe That Sunstroke Is Caused by Ultra-Violet Rays

The ultra-violet rays, which form the basis of this modern scientific miracle, are contained abundantly in the sun's radiation, but they are invisible to the eye. They can also be produced artificially by means of the mercury vapor lamp. It is with these artificially produced rays that the experiments have been performed.

They are of very short wave-length, and most of those coming from the sun are intercepted by the atmosphere. If it were not so life would probably be impossible on the earth because the ultra-violet rays have a deadly effect when they fall unimpeded upon an animal organization. It is believed that sunstroke is due to the effect of these rays. They are also fatal to microbes, and have been utilized for the destruction of many kinds of noxious germs.

Recently the Automobile Club of Paris has installed in its headquarters a swimming tank whose water is freed from all germs by means of a large mercury vapor lamp immersed beneath the surface. The deadly rays pass out through a lens of quartz, which is transparent to them, and quickly destroy all the floating germs in the water around the lamp. Drinking water is purified in a similar manner.

The ordinary mercury vapor lamp would be dangerous to the eyes but for the fact that the glass of the tubes in which the light is produced is opaque to these rays. It allows the luminous rays to pass, but obstructs the ultra-violet ones. Quartz, on the contrary, allows all the rays to pass.

Ultra-Violet Rays Create Obstruction to Their Passage

These same rays are being extensively employed in medicine. The celebrated Finsen rays, used for the cure of maladies of the skin, are of this character. They have a strong photographic power and are able to produce many chemical reactions that cannot be produced otherwise.

One of the wonderful things about the ultra-violet rays proceeding from the sun is the fact that they themselves appear to produce in the atmosphere of the earth the obstruction which prevents their own passage, except in a very small quantity. This is due to their transforming atmospheric oxygen into ozone, for the ozone thus formed intercepts the very rays which have produced it. There is very little ozone in the air, but the quantity existing is usually sufficient to shield us from the deadly rays whose action upon the atmosphere has created it.

If the air were suddenly stripped from the earth it is believed that the ultra-violet rays falling unimpeded upon its surface would swiftly destroy all animal life.

Rays May Be Used in the Future for War Purposes

A lugubrious suggestion has been made by Professor Houllevigue of Marseilles, based upon the destructive power of the ultra-violet. May it not be possible, he says, that some day a wicked magician of science will construct a machine capable of sending out an invisible beam of ultra-violet radiation to a distance of hundreds of yards, which will strike blind the eyes of any person upon whom it may be directed? The terrors of such a weapon in the hands of an aviator may easily be imagined without going into details.

Can a Man Educate Himself in Two Hours a Day?

could be put in two numbers of this newspaper and made as easy to read as this editorial.

Remember that in history the important thing is not the date of a battle, or the name of a fighter, but the movements of human thought which culminated in that battle, and the social condition that developed the fighter.

What the world needs and has never had is A HISTORY OF HUMAN THOUGHT. The great Russian student, Ostrogorski, once promised this writer that he would undertake the writing of such a history. It is hoped that he will. He is able to write it.

All that there is of man is HIS THOUGHT. The reader whose letter we answer here must constantly ask himself, WHAT DO I KNOW ABOUT THE DEVELOPMENT OF THOUGHT AND KNOWLEDGE UPON THIS EARTH?

By studying the thought of men he will stimulate his own thought in the right direction, and add to his knowledge.

It is a great temptation to supply a list of books here, for there are many that should be read and many that could justly be recommended. But we prefer to outline some of the things that should be studied, advising our readers to get the advice and direction of public librarians in the selecting of books.

Read a brief history of philosophy, the simpler the better. As you read, remember that all philosophy is speculation and guesswork. But you must know what philosophers have thought and guessed in order to understand the development of thought.

From Pythagoras to the half-crazed Nietzsche you may read the dramatic, pitiful effort of a man to solve the problem of infinite power, infinite space, time without beginning or end.

Study the great writers as well, especially the four greatest, Homer, Dante, Goethe and Shakespeare.

Make yourself acquainted with the lives and the work of the five greatest men that have lived since the world began.

Archimedes in science, Beethoven in music, Michael Angelo in art, Newton in mathematics and Shakespeare in literature.

Remember above all that a man reading is like a man eating. What the stomach is to food the brain is to knowledge.

The question is not how MUCH can I eat, but how much can I DIGEST.

It is better to read a little and think a great deal than to read a great deal and think but little.

The only thing that helps you is the work that goes on INSIDE YOUR OWN BRAIN.
